OTTAWA (CP)—"I will indicate in no way any preference for a successor and I will have no part in this aspect of party activities."

Thus Prime Minister Pearson stated emphatically the path he will follow after announcing Thursday he will retire next spring as prime minister and Liberal leader once the party picks a successor.

Close associates of Pearson said that although the prime minister, like Mackenzie King, will make no public pronouncements, he favors a successor a "reform" Liberal, preferably French-speaking.

These sources added that three Liberals Pearson does not consider in the "reform" category are External Affairs Minister Martin, Finance Minister Sharp and Transport Minister Hellyer.

They said that at least one Liberal considered as a reformer by Pearson is Justice Minister Trudeau, 46-year-old bachelor.

LEADERS ALTERNATE

In this century, the Liberals have alternated between French and English-speaking leaders.

Pearson has said privately he is Canada's last unilingual prime minister.

It may be significant that the only cabinet ministers he saw privately Thursday night at home were Trudeau and Manpower Minister Marchand. The subject was not known.

Test Tube Synthesis Hailed as Landmark

It Reproduces Itself —But Is It Living?

TEAM CREATES ACTIVE VIRUS

By WILLIAM C. HARRISON

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Biochemists said Thursday they had synthesized an active virus in a major step that could lead to creation of life itself.

Dr. Arthur Kornberg, head of Stanford University's department of biochemistry, and Dr. Mehran Goulian, former Stanford post-doctoral fellow now at the University of Chicago, said they had produced in a test tube for the first time a fully active DNA virus.

Dr. Kornberg called the man-made virus biologically active—meaning that it can produce certain specific reactions—but he would not say that it is living matter.

The Stanford University biochemists, noting that there is no one accepted definition of the word "life," said nonetheless that they had succeeded in creating a virus which was capable of reproducing itself.

"There is a wide difference among the attitudes of scientists as to whether viruses are living," said Dr. Kornberg.

In Washington, Dr. James A. Shannon, director of the National Institutes of Health, the key financial supporter of Dr. Kornberg's work, said the achievement "unquestionably will stand as one of the great landmarks of research in the life sciences."

He said the new development has great potential to help solve a number of difficult and pressing national health problems, particularly certain forms of cancer that may be caused by viruses, and possibly diseases of genetic origin.

A virus is a protein bag containing a coiled thread of threads of nucleic acids, the essence of life. Viruses cause numerous diseases in men, plants and animals, but many others do not.

DNA—deoxyribonucleic acid—is the basic hereditary material found in every living cell. When, in feeding, a cell absorbs a virus containing DNA, the viral nucleic acid can take control of the cell's own DNA, which then starts producing more viruses instead of taking care of its cell functions. Sometimes it makes so many viruses that it bursts.

The Stanford team used as a template or pattern the single-thread DNA of a dwarf virus, PHI X 174, that infects and destroys a type of bacteria called E. coli in the human intestinal tract. Neither the virus nor the microbe is known to cause disease.

Dr. Robert L. Sinsheimer of Cal Tech discovered PHI X 174

Soviet Ship Circles Oil Rig

Navy Eyes Surveyor

By MARK DICKINSON

The mystery mission of HMCS Qu'Appelle and HMCS Saskatchewan has been to keep track of a Russian navy survey vessel off the west coast of Vancouver Island, Rear Admiral J. A. Charles said at a press conference Thursday.

It was the first official word of the nature of the ships' secret movements since Saturday.

The RCN began watching the unnamed Soviet ship Saritshev, after it was noted making "unusual" manoeuvres close to the Canadian coast, said the commander of Pacific Maritime Forces.

The mission of Qu'Appelle and Saskatchewan was kept secret so that the Russians would not know the intention of the surveillance patrol.

"We didn't know what the Russians were doing out there, so we did not think they should know exactly what we were intending to do about them," said the admiral.

He said the two destroyer escorts were ordered to stand by the 2,674-ton Saritshev in case "we could give it any assistance or guidance if it were to enter (Canadian) territorial waters."

The navy first spotted the Russian survey vessel after it steamed east across the north

Pacific to the entrance of Juan de Fuca Strait.

The Saritshev, which remained about 50 miles off Vancouver Island coast during its trip north, stopped near the Queen Charlotte Island. When it turned into Hecate Strait — thought to be "most unusual" — the Qu'Appelle was sent out.

On Monday the Russians took on supplies from a Soviet tanker and the next day the Saritshev arrived off Wickanishish Bay where it circled a Shell Oil rig, SEDCO 135-F, three times.

VESSEL SLOWED

Then it was back to Juan de Fuca Strait on Wednesday when she slowed and manoeuvred.

Rear-Admiral Charles said the Soviet actions were "inappropriate intrusions."

"It is normal, under international understandings concerning warships, to let one another know what's happening," he said. "In this case, nobody knew."

MAPPING TASK

Rear Admiral Charles speculated that the Saritshev was mapping the sea bottom and conducting hydrographic surveys.

The ship may also be off the North American coast to conduct tests when the announced Russian atomic explosions occur near the Aleutian Islands, he said.

After the Saskatchewan replaced Qu'Appelle, the Russians steamed south, off the U.S. coast.

The Qu'Appelle arrived in port at 8 a.m. Thursday and the Saskatchewan was expected home early this morning.

Death Bill Passed By Senate

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate Thursday passed the government's bill restricting the death penalty to killers of police officers and prison guards.

The bill, previously passed by the Commons, now needs only royal assent to become law.

Mills Halt Work To Help Hydro

B.C. Hydro power system for the province reached an all-time peak load demand of 2,150,000 kilowatts Wednesday night. Several Vancouver Island pulp mills were asked to shut down operation.

No heavier loads are expected, Hydro co-chairman Dr. Gordon Strum said Thursday night from Vancouver.

"I think we've had the highest load now," he said. No homes were affected.

B.C. Hydro for several weeks has been gearing for the possibility of a power "brownout" during an expected peak load period on the Island during mid-December.

Dr. Strum described a brownout as "something like sprinkling regulations."

Hydro received word from all lumber and pulp operations that they would shut off power at peak periods.

"Some mills doing pulp grinding closed down work Wednesday night," he said. Another Hydro spokesman said they were at Port Alberni and Cranston.

"If they hadn't, the voltage would have just gone down to the point where motors would have burned out, and then every one would have been in real trouble."

He said heavy industries shut down operation on a rotation basis.

It would be two years before adequate standby capacity was available in the Island, he said in an earlier statement.

Attempts to boost the transmission of power by submarine cables have been delayed by failure of transformers to meet specifications.

Over Welfare Fees

Patients Facing Eviction

By A. H. MURPHY

Two large Victoria private hospitals told city council Thursday that if it can't pay more for the accommodation of welfare patients it had better "make other arrangements" in from one to three weeks.

However, aldermen were also informed that there just aren't any other beds for the 66 patients facing eviction, or the 175 more who should be in hospital.

There is just no place for them to go, said Ald. Lily Wilson. All beds are full and the provincial government isn't licensing any more hospitals.

A delegation from council will seek an immediate interview with Welfare Minister Campbell to resolve a situation which was described by Ald. Wilson as "completely impossible."

"Where are our people going to go?" she asked.

The hospitals, Glengarry and Glenwarren informed the city that they could no longer accommodate welfare patients, many of whom are bedridden, at the rate of $230 a month which is allowed the city by the provincial government.

In a letter dated Dec. 6, Glengarry Hospital's solicitors

Papa Bear Adds Tonic

Victorians can have a night out next Wednesday, watch a first-class nightclub show and give to the Colonel 500 Fund at the same time.

Nightclub owner Christopher Crawley said Thursday that Papa Bear's Medicine Show will be at the Nine in the Fifth Place, 1313 Government, from 8:30 p.m. until 1 a.m., with the proceeds going to the fund.

"I'll be donating the club's facilities and also giving free coffee," he said.

"Papa Bear's Medicine Show features artists from Seattle, London, and Holland, and it's first class entertainment."

"There's everything from New Orleans jazz to contemporary music, and the group is very strong vocally."

Admission will be $2, and patrons will see the same show being given at the club tonight and Saturday.

This Saturday and Sunday the Victoria Gun Club holds its annual ham and turkey shoot to swell the fund, which Thursday stood just below the $10,000 mark.

Aim is to get a total of $15,000 before the deadline for donations next Thursday, so that each of the 500 families which the Daily Colonist has undertaken to help this Christmas will get $30 each.

Romanians Meet Russians To Test Width of Rift

MOSCOW (UPI) — Romanian and Soviet leaders Thursday opened what could be the most crucial talks in the 20 years of relations between the two quarreling Communist nations.

Informed sources said the Romanians, led by party chairman Nicolae Ceausescu, arrived on a "make or break" mission to find out if their differences with the Kremlin can be resolved or will send Romania veering ever farther from the Soviet line.

Ceausescu, Premier Ion Gheorghe Maurer and most of their top aides arrived by train Thursday. Their talks with party leader Leonid Brezhnev, Premier Alexei Kosygin and other Soviet officials began at lunchtime and lasted all afternoon.

An official communiqué said only that they met in a "friendly atmosphere."

Both Soviet and Romanian sources said the issues dividing the two nations were basic and pressing:

• Will Romania go to the Soviet-sponsored Budapest meeting in late February to help plan a world Communist summit conference?

• Does Romania plan to cooperate more with Comecon, the East European Common Market, or take its trade increasingly to the west?

• How does Romania feel about such matters as West Germany, the Mideast, a nuclear non-proliferation treaty and, most important, the renewal of the 20-year Soviet-Romanian friendship treaty?

Both sides were reported "pessimistic" that the talks could accomplish more than an agreement, at best, to disagree. A noticeable shift in either Romanian or Soviet policy was considered unlikely.

Discord Halts Czech Meeting

VIENNA (UPI) — Discord in Czechoslovakia's Communist hierarchy was reported Thursday to have forced postponement of a central committee meeting to deal with the possible resignation of party chief Antonin Novotny.

Informed Czechoslovak sources in Vienna said they learned from Prague that the central committee meeting was off. It was supposed to have convened Wednesday.

Political observers believed that apparent disunity in the party leadership about the planned reshuffle and who would succeed Novotny caused the postponement.

BREZHNEV COMING
The official Czechoslovak news agency, CTK, reported from Prague, "We will keep you informed when the central committee will meet."

Sources said it was certain the meeting would be held late this month.

First reports about the postponement were carried by Austrian radio Thursday. They said Soviet party chief Leonid Brezhnev was expected in Prague before the meeting.

KREMLIN SUPPORTER
Brezhnev dropped into Prague last Friday in a surprise visit but is expected again to try to straighten out the disunity, the broadcast said.

Novotny, a staunch supporter of the Kremlin line, was expected to keep merely his position as president of the state.

Military's Win Isolates Greece

From AP, Reuters

ATHENS, Greece (CP) — The military government ruled Greece unchallenged Thursday after crushing a royal counter-coup that sent King Constantine fleeing to Rome and exile. But victory only increased Greece's isolation from its Western allies.

Prime Minister Wilson said in London British diplomatic relations with the military government are no longer valid because the king has left the country. He told the House of Commons the whole question of relations with the junta must be studied.

NO RECOGNITION

The state department in Washington said the United States is withholding recognition. The U.S. previously had shown its displeasure with last April's army coup by withholding all arms shipments to Greece, an ally in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The fast-breaking events in Greece—over in less than 24 hours—left the fate of the monarchy and Greece's 104-year-old royal dynasty in doubt.

NEW PREMIER

Col. George Papadopoulos, the new premier and strong man of the regime, said Greece will continue to be a "constitutional monarchy," but with a regent instead of king.

Appointed as regent was Lt. Gen. George Zolotas, a relative unknown with no royal blood. At the same time the symbols of the monarchy were being erased in Athens. The royal flag was lowered from the palace and photographs of the king and Queen Anne-Marie were removed from government offices and public buildings.

The famous royal bodyguard of kilted soldiers, the Evzones, were taken from their posts outside the palace.

In a broadcast, Papadopoulos told the nation: "The anti-nationalist conspiracy has been crushed. The conspirators have been ousted."

Then an Athens broadcast for the first time told the nation of 8,000,000 that the king had fled to Rome.

IN SORROW

Later, talking with reporters, Papadopoulos seemed to speak more in sorrow than in anger about the king.

"I admit that had we known of his plans we would have tried at the last minute to enlighten him and prevent him from going astray," he said. "The whole action is inconceivable to us."

But he declared the king had voluntarily surrendered his functions.

BETTER HOLD

The military regime was reported strengthening its hold on the nation by arresting officers believed to be monarchists, and conservative politicians. At least three generals who came out for the king were known to be in custody.

In an apparent attempt to strengthen unity in the shaken ranks of the army, the government offered amnesty to all officers who had been "misled by their superiors."

Athens appeared calm and were thronged with Christmas shoppers. The troops and tanks that poured into the streets shortly after noon Wednesday were gone.

The only reports of fighting Wednesday were between royalist air force and army units at Eleusis Air Force Base southwest of Athens and on the big island at Crete.

OFFICERS PLACED

Some observers thought the king was thwarted by skilful planning by Papadopoulos, who emerged as uncontested leader of the military group running the government.

Since he came to power April 21, Papadopoulos is believed to have placed about 1,500 officers loyal to the regime in key posts in army units throughout the country.

This could account for the fact that when the king flew north, hoping to rally the country behind the royal banner, his efforts were sabotaged by officers supporting the government.

The Race Begins

THE RUMORS THAT Prime Minister Lester Pearson would soon resign from the leadership of the Liberal Party have for so long appeared and disappeared that the unheralded announcement of his decision to do so has come as a surprise and even a shock—and somewhat as a puzzle.

The prime minister was supposed to be staying on at the helm because of the crisis of Canadian unity. The crisis, if it is such, has not notably diminished nor passed by, and it must be questioned whether Mr. Pearson over-optimistically thinks it has or whether he sees it extending into the future longer than he can hope to remain in office.

But the prime minister is certainly entitled to his leisure after such a long and eminent career in the service of the people of Canada. His political days have been trying in the past decade; first as head of a defeated party in opposition; then as head of a minority government with internal divisions. It can be said that Mr. Pearson has been bold in bringing before Parliament issues which have rocked the country in controversy, and which other politicians might have preferred to ignore. But the decisiveness which was a promised adjunct of his prime ministership did not materialize.

It may be therefore that Mr. Pearson will be doing his party a great favor by relinquishing the leadership next spring—if a successor can be selected who is able to match the new image that has been given to the Progressive Conservative Party by the choice of Mr. Robert Stanfield as leader.

But the question here is what the ranks of the Liberal Party have to offer. Among those often mentioned as possible successors are External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp, Transport Minister Paul Hellyer, Health Minister Allan Rock and Registrar-General John Turner—and among these one wonders if there is any capable of providing the decisiveness, and the unity of policy lacking in the present administration.

Mr. Pearson does not think that the government will be weakened in the next three months or so by his announced departure, but on this score also he may be over-optimistic. He says he has no misgivings about cabinet members who may be candidates for leadership staying in Ottawa doing their jobs—but twice in a year, according to capital sources, Messrs. Martin, Sharp and Hellyer have earned his wrath for taking just the opposite course. The prize has been posted, and despite Mr. Pearson's hopeful expectations, the campaign undoubtedly now will begin—in earnest.

Beggar-My-Neighbor

ALTHOUGH FIVE of the six members of the Common Market appear eager for British participation in this economically progressive operation, France persists in opposition even in the face of warnings of the development of the gravest sort of crisis as a result.

Rightly or wrongly, it is President Charles de Gaulle who is blamed for the stubborn French stand and what is seen as a "beggar-my-neighbor" policy towards Britain. Elsewhere than in the presidential offices, there is a good deal of sympathy and hard-headed business support in France for Britain's membership.

As Britain ponders on her worst-ever monthly trade deficit, for November, amounting to $393,210,000—due in large part to devaluation of the pound and the inexcusable and illegal dock strikes—the five EEC member-nations which support her application for partnership are meeting in Brussels.

Belgium, Holland, Italy, West Germany and Luxembourg are said to be convinced that continued French refusal to admit Britain will cause serious deterioration of the whole European trade position.

Acceptance of the British into the club would open the way to wider membership, including the eight nations in the European Free Trade Association in which Britain is a key partner.

In spite of French rebuffs and the humiliation growing out of them, the British are determined to pursue the goal which they believe will lead to fuller European prosperity and, ultimately, to something in the nature of a United States of Europe.

This is not to say that the British position is wholly altruistic. It is based on the desire for the freer expansion of British commerce with the rich European market. But the benefits are seen to be reciprocal.

The British are just as determined to gain the EEC-member status as President de Gaulle is to prevent them.

The Daily Sketch puts the position bluntly: "The future of Britain cannot be allowed to hang on the life-thread of this obstinate old Frenchman."

Resolution of the impasse is of crucial importance not only for the EEC but for their trading partners all over the world, for any serious check to the momentum of the Common Market not only sets back the eventual European integration but threatens the continued expansion of global commerce that the EEC itself has considerably stimulated.

Blanket Accusation

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS Minister Dan Campbell owes British Columbia municipalities an explanation of his reported statement at the federal-provincial housing conference that they are misusing winter works and urban renewal programs, to provide municipal services.

The purpose of the winter employment programs is to provide jobs for the jobless with projects that the municipalities would not normally undertake, and it is difficult to draw a firm dividing line between what they would and would not do without federal and provincial assistance.

Urban renewal, as Victoria's Mayor Stephen says, is the use of public money to clear up older sections of a city in order to attract private capital. The result is new or refurbished accommodation for people or business, and new taxation values for the city.

In programs of either sort, some "municipal services" are almost bound to be provided. And what is more, both winter works and urban renewal projects have to win the approval of the provincial government to qualify for the federal aid.

If the minister knows of instances of misuse that will fit the public's understanding of the word, therefore, he ought to cite them so that the municipalities of B.C. in general will not remain under the blanket condemnation—and he ought also to explain how the programs in question got around the provincial scrutiny.

Hello, Dalton? I wonder if I could ask your advice on the matter of a little convention we're thinking of holding...

Know-Your-Neighbor Study Reveals Sad Lacks on Both Sides of Border

By GREG CONNOLLEY, Colonial Ottawa Bureau

CANADA is largely ignored in American schools which give more attention to Europe, a survey of U.S. institutions has revealed.

At grades five and six in U.S. schools, Canada gets some attention in geography courses. Also at this level some Canadian history may be taught, integrated with United States history.

The survey of education in the U.S. was made by Dr. Gerald Nason, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Teachers Federation. He spent two months on the project, visiting New York, Boston, Albany, Chicago, Denver and San Francisco.

He found that in U.S. high schools, broad courses in government or other subjects that might touch on Canada were usually optional.

"They say, though, that we get mentioned in current affairs discussions," Dr. Nason said.

Dr. Nason said the greatest emphasis in the U.S., as in Canadian schools, was on the "good neighbor" aspect of Canadian-American relations.

"This in itself creates an unrealistic picture. Americans assume we always see things as they do and should do as they wish."

The tendency, Dr. Nason found, was for U.S. teaching to focus on trouble spots in the world. "If we have enough trouble in Canada, we will get attention."

Dr. Nason believes Canada must make Americans realize "that we are different."

"I hadn't realized this until I made this tour. Coming home was like slipping into comfortable old shoes. Surface similarities are deceptive."

He said Americans were more nationalistic than Canadians. He concluded that in the U.S. melting pot theory, nationalism had been firmly formed.

"The schools and many other institutions are regarded as instruments of national policy and purpose."

Dr. Nason prefers the Canadian mosaic concept. He is opposed to the proposition that Canadian patriotism should be stimulated.

During his visit he was able to deduce that superficially Canadians know more about Americans than the latter do about Canada.

That's because we hear a lot more from them than they do from us. However, we are just as ignorant of their real culture as they are of ours."

Dr. Nason praised American education and thereby knocked down as a "myth" a Canadian belief that U.S. schools are inferior.

"Many Canadians now living in the U.S. told me that the schools teach French better than we do and are more demanding in science and mathematics."

"I have some reservations about the teaching of English, though."

He said teachers in the U.S. school systems were better qualified than Canadians, with a higher proportion holding university degrees.

Dr. Nason was sent to the U.S. by the federal department of external affairs because of interest in Canada aroused by Expo 67.

Part of the department's work is to spread knowledge of Canada abroad through books, films and other materials supplied through Canadian embassies and consulates abroad.

"We must persuade American schools to want to learn more about Canada."

He thought this could best be done by working through national organizations of U.S. educators who had publications and links with local schools.

Defence of Tradition

THE article I read on "Jesus Helps Santa" in the December 3 Colonist, where the boy said he "snuck down and saw his man and dad fix up his Christmas stocking," I think was unnecessary to publish.

I am a girl of nine years old, and I believed in Santa up until I read that article. It has upset me awfully. I have brothers and sisters younger than myself and am not allowed to tell them in case I disappoint them.

Children that still believe in Santa can read things such as your paper and this article was not appreciated.

JOCELYN GRAEME,
The Latch,
Sidney, B.C.

Dear Jocelyn:

You can still believe in Santa Claus as the Spirit of Christmas for in that sense he is very much alive. (Ed.)

This Freedom

With reference to your editorial "Breath-Take Law," may I say how odd I find it that a paper such as yours, which makes formal declaration of its supposedly "independent" and individual status, and therefore, presumably its stand for the individual, can, however tentatively espouse the new "anti-drink" law recently brought in Britain.

It is indeed "unduly harsh" for one of that law's basic points — that a refusal to submit to any of the tests automatically implies that the person being questioned is presumed guilty, and presumed guilty before he is even charged. On that very point alone it should be thrown out for it is not a fact that the whole British legal system is built on the premise of "innocent until proven guilty."

It should be remembered too, just what sort of government (Socialist) and even more particularly and specifically, what individual minister — Mrs. Barbara Castle, a rampant left-wing socialist, left-wing even in the eyes of the right — is responsible for this law being implemented.

As a person who still regards the individual as the key and paramount unit in the community and the master, not the servant, of the state, I am much more in favor of the system presently used in B.C., a system which achieves the desired result — that of removing drivers "under the influence" from the road — without the dictatorial and automatically self-condemning features of the new British system, and also providing a deterrent through the official recording of such (24-hour) suspensions. Another feature of our law is that the enforcement of it imposes a much less onerous and odious burden on the police, and therefore presumably improves public co-operation correspondingly.

The new British system smacks all too much of budding dictatorship, and no matter how desirable and right the object may be, the means now used is shocking: the British don't want it and neither do we. Rather let us export our system to them.

Lost Revenue

Your headline article concerning austerity moves, announced by Revenue Minister Benson will come as a shock to anyone familiar with Andrew Lamorie's little book about Canada. His chapter on taxes, along with the rest of the book, reveals facts every Canadian should know. For instance, evidently Ottawa does not collect taxes on profits of American businesses in Canada sending these profits to parent companies in the U.S. — "If Ottawa treated American investors no easier and no harder — just exactly the same — than Washington treats Canadian investors... we would immediately gain $1,400,000,000 (probably much more) per year." This would certainly pay for a lot of telescopes, research labs, civil service pay, etc., mentioned in your article.

As long as we Canadians raise no objection to this and many other ways of pouring Canadian money across the border, we certainly have no right to object to the inevitable increase in taxes and decrease in services.

Critic Under Fire

There is a young journalist on the Victoria morning paper, assigned to both educational writings and book reviewing. He writes as if he had been endowed with the wisdom of the ages.

On December 8 he aroused considerable published indignation for his recent reviewing of a book on Edmonton. Because he doesn't like that centre, although admittedly born there, he dogmatically damns the entire book plus the author. His superciliousness that such a destructive criticism will stimulate the paper's circulation. Unfortunately, they are imbibing this young man with very heady ideas about his own ability and experience. It probably gives him a sense of power to tear strips off the author, like the tropical piranha fish, and hence virtually ruin any chance for the sale of the book, to say nothing of the setback to its producer. It is an accepted fact that very few critics are competent to successfully create in the field to which they are assigned, or have chosen — whether literature, drama or music. But their often immature and unfair personal comments can be devastating to the career of a struggling author or composer.

Perhaps this young man should attempt to visualize himself in the shoes of those he criticizes. He might then receive a faint glimmer of how disastrous it could be if the tables were reversed.

VOILA TOUT.

Reward Delayed

Referring to an article by Mr. Bill Thomas on November 30, we have looked into the matter of the 13-year-old boy not receiving his prize for last year's Christmas Lighting Contest.

Unfortunately, this was a mistake of our club and we will try to see that it won't happen again.

We will see that this young man receives his prize immediately and hope that he will accept our apologies.

We hope that all of Victoria will again support our contest this year and wish to make our city as bright as possible for the Christmas season.

Hunkey, Says Negro, Getting Frightened

By COLIN LEGUM

BLACK Power feeds on white racism in America, just as white racism feeds on black militancy. Ex-governor George Wallace of Alabama thinks he will be president of the United States one day. Ask militant Negro leader, Rap Brown, what he thinks of this, and he will say "Wallace or Johnson?—it makes no difference. Only Wallace is a good deal more honest."

In 1965 I heard African leaders in South Africa say the same sort of thing about Smuts and Melan, when the apartheid regime was making its first successful bid for power.

Black power consciously plays on the fears of whites, just as whites have for years played on the fears of blacks. Negro militant Stokely Carmichael says: "So hunkey (the white man) is getting frightened; well, it's up to him to do something about it—it's not up to us."

There are reasons for alarm because of the depth of the Negro anger, because much that is said in anger is manifestly true, and because of the destruction which even a handful of dedicated Black Power militants can unleash in an unrelenting ghetto before "law and order" can be restored. But there is also a positive side to Black Power.

White America — possibly for the first time — is beginning to look at black Americans as an active element of the community, capable of doing politically for good or bad; they can undermine the country at home and damage its standing abroad. The potential of Black Power's destructiveness rings not only bells of alarm; it helps to raise the Negro in the scale of American priorities. This is unprecedented.

Secondly, Black Power no longer makes it easy for Americans to refuse to look at what the dark underside of their country is thinking and feeling about the white upside. It's not just the extremists who are filled with rage, with feelings of vengeance and hatred; there is a part in the minds of a great majority of Negroes which says "amen" to a lot of what Black Power advocates say.

The extremists seem to fill a double role; they are a powerful megaphone which makes it impossible for white Americans not to hear what really goes on in the mind of black America; and they are a burning-glass concentrating black anger on the pages and screens of white mass media.

Black Power's assertion of the Negro's right to be treated as a man and not as a boy is a declaration of the "coming of age" of the black American. He has stopped appealing to be treated decently in fulfillment of white America's promises to him. He wants to be treated properly because of an undeniable right to be so.

Black Power contributes towards building up Negro morale. It strengthens his confidence in his own capacity to be equal, and helps to overcome a centuries-old, inbred sense of inferiority. He is daring to task and think not as an equal.

Black Power is helping to rekindle the divided Negro community, by demonstrating to the middle-class Negro that blood is thicker than water, and that he cannot really escape into freedom across the color line.

"Integration today means the man who 'makes it' leaving his black brothers behind in the ghetto as fast as his new sports car will take him," says Stokely

Carmichael. "It has no relevance to the Harlem wino, or to the cotton picker making three dollars a day. As a lady I know in Alabama once said, 'The food that Ralph Bunche eats doesn't fill my stomach!'"

Meaningful integration, if it is ever to take place — and that's a big question — needs a good deal more than allowing a few thousand Negroes a year to move up the social scale; it means moving the whole Negro community, notch by notch, up that scale.

Black Power is rousing Negroes to a quicker understanding of the kind of politics that are meaningful to their own community. It means, again as Carmichael says, "the importance of electing representatives to speak for their needs. A man or woman who is black, and from the slums, cannot be automatically expected to speak the needs of black people. Most of the black politicians we see around the country today are not what the Student Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee means by Black Power. The power must be that of a community, and emanate from there."

Black Power is lifting some of the despair from the hopelessness of black faces. It is giving the purposeless and unemployed youth a cause for their rebellion; it can help direct energies away from crime into political militancy, and into community activity and responsibility.

Finally, for the first time, Black Power is producing black leaders who can actually communicate with the people in the ghettos. Malcolm X was the first authentic ghetto voice; Carmichael — a sophisticated West Indian — is less so. But Rap Brown is in the Malcolm X tradition. There are many others who are not known outside their own black precincts.

The dismal, dreadful tragedy is that the authentic ghetto voices belong to precisely those men who are most alienated from American society for the very reason that their constituency is outside it.

Many of the Black Establishment leaders are superb people — eminent Americans. But they lack the ability to command or to stop a riot. They carry more weight in the White House than in Lowndes County or in the "Hilltop C.O.N.C.O." as the local inhabitants describe their public utility tenements in Chicago. What every democratic society needs are authentic spokesmen from their own communities.

Black Power in its radical reformist vein, articulates these positive aspirations. Its revolutionary violent veins ooze down through a Negro that isn't won saving. Both these veins belong equally to Black Power. In the internal conflict that rages within the ranks of Black Power one or other of these veins is going to be severed in the struggle that lies ahead. A great deal depends on which of the two it is going to be.

Affluence, Vicious Pressures, Non-Teachers to Blame

Why U.S. Students Are Restless

By JOSEPH KRAFT, from Washington

Maybe the student unrest now boiling up everywhere in the United States is caused by draft-dodgers shirking their duty in Vietnam.

But my impression is that the rash behavior of the students is set against a far more complicated background — a background of change in the atmosphere of education, in the disposition of university faculties, and in general social conditions.

My feeling is that unless these conditions are understood and reformed the universities will soon be turning out students doing far more destructive things than protesting the Vietnamese war.

The first of these conditions is the condition known as affluence. The present crop of college students is probably the first in history to be raised and educated against the background of plenty.

They are sure that there will be jobs, well-paying jobs, waiting for them when they leave school. They feel no serious economic constraint.

Instead, they have been under a different, and far more vicious, kind of pressure. For beginning about a decade ago, when the Soviet Union set off the first sputnik, the atmosphere of American education was transformed.

At that point there set in an intense emphasis on achievement and accomplishment reflected in competition for grades. At good high schools and boarding schools, admission standards were tightened, work loads increased, the curriculum made more serious.

The kids now in college, or just leaving, are the successful products of the new seriousness in American education. For the past 10 years they have been writing papers and taking exams under game conditions. They have lived in the pressure cooker.

Hand in hand with the emphasis on educational achievement there has gone a change in teaching patterns. In the post-sputnik period, prestige and money have gone to the highly trained professional — including, preeminently, the man with the advanced degree, the professor.

In consequence, more and more college teachers have been drawn primarily to their subject and its most advanced frontiers, and away from their students. The professors are looking less and less to the university and more and more to their work as consultants to industry and government. The motto has become, "Have Degree, Will Travel."

The inevitable result of all this is that toward the last year of college a severe reaction sets in. Unengaged by truly exciting teachers, and feeling no economic constraints, the very best students become bored and disillusioned. They feel an outraged sense of having been conned.

Some of them simply turn off — in the fashion of the hippies. But others, the very best, embark upon a search of something that can stir them — something that is, to use what is now the magic word on campus, relevant.

It may take the form of support for the civil rights movement. It may take the form of enthusiasm for the social ethics now being preached with surprising success by such ministers as Robert McAfee Brown at Stanford or William Sloane Coffin, Jr., at Yale.

Junta's Rule Strengthened

Miscalculation Cost Greek King a Throne

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
From Athens

"King Constantine greatly miscalculated, and as a result he lost his throne."

This was how one western diplomat here summed up the attempted counter-coup against Greece's ruling military junta by the king and a few key officers Wednesday which ended in Constantine fleeing into exile in Rome.

The diplomat, and most Greeks appear to agree with him, was convinced that the events had strengthened the junta's iron-fisted rule over this country.

Col. George Papadopoulos, the junta's strong man, has been elevated to the premiership by the newly appointed regent, Lt. Gen. George Zolotas, replacing Constantine Kollas, who fled with the king and reportedly had encouraged Constantine to act by submitting his resignation.

Kollas told the king earlier this week that he could no longer hold office while Papadopoulos, his deputy, ran the country without even consulting him.

The junta exhibited increasing confidence Thursday. It announced that the four key conspirators who it said had "fooled and misled" the king were under "administrative arrest" and would not even be court-martialed.

The four were the commander of C-corps, the largest Greek military formation which is located in the north facing Turkey and consists of five divisions; his chief of staff; the commander of the 20th army division, and the chief of staff of the Greek air force.

Constantine flew to the corps headquarters Wednesday after briefly stopping at Larissa to broadcast to the nation that he was taking over and the armed forces were with him.

Papadopoulos told a press conference Thursday that the junta was in firm control of the country and observers here saw no reason to disbelieve him. He said no blood had been shed in the attempted counter-coup and that the perpetrators had been arrested by their own staff officers.

A number of royalist officers plus other officers dismissed after the April 21 coup have been arrested, as well as a few civilians including a right-wing former minister of defence.

Lt. Gen. Gregory Spandidakis, the junta's former defence minister and a man who gave it his reluctant support, has been dismissed, as has Minister of Interior Paul Tokmalis.

Sources said the junta foiled the attempt by infiltrating its own officers among the plotters. A Maj. Petsanis, based in Salonika, was described as the key man who mobilized C-corps troops to foil it.

It was believed that the action was initiated by Constantine despite Papadopoulos' claim that the king had been misled. He was thought to have acted at this time to take advantage of the deep discontent within military ranks caused by what is generally regarded as capitulation to Turkish threats during the recent Cyprus crisis.

The junta Thursday was reported making efforts to secure its legitimacy by re-opening contacts with the U.S., British, French, West German and Italian embassies here.

Papadopoulos said the appointment of a regent meant that there was no change of regime.

Ambassadors here are accredited to the king. When the king stayed on as nominal head of state after the April coup d'etat, Western governments took the easy way out and accepted the new regime despite severe misgivings over Greece's becoming the first country in western Europe since the Second World War to fall under a military dictatorship.

Not One Drop of Greek Blood

The Greek royal dynasty, which has not one drop of Greek blood, has been on and off the throne several times in this century. It has always been able to stage a comeback because of its hold on the hearts of the Greek people.

Since Prince William of Denmark was summoned to the vacant Greek throne in 1863 with the assent of Great Britain, France and Russia, the House of Glücksburg has given Greece six monarchs. One was assassinated and two were forced into exile twice.

Prince William, who became King George I of the Hellenes, had the longest reign — 50 years — during which Greece became a power in its own right instead of a ward of other nations. George was killed by a dissident Greek in Salonika in 1913 and was succeeded by his son, Constantine.

Constantine, who was married to Kaiser Wilhelm II's sister, tried to remain neutral in the First World War and was forced to flee the country when allied troops landed after Constantine resisted a series of ultimata. The successor government, headed by Premier Eleutherios Venizelos, declared war on Germany.

The allies refused to accept Crown Prince George because of his German sympathies but allowed his brother, Prince Alexander, to ascend the throne in 1917.

He died three years later as the result of the bite of his pet monkey and Venizelos was defeated at the polls two months later.

King Constantine was recalled to Greece in a wave of national emotion which culminated in a disastrous war with Turkey.

The army revolted after its defeat by Turkey in 1922 and Constantine abdicated, dying a year later in Sicily. His elder son became George II but the young king fled Greece in 1923 in the face of rising republican feeling. The Glücksburg dynasty was formally deposed by the national assembly and a plebiscite. After more than a decade of political chaos due to the bickering of many small political parties, the monarchy was restored in 1935 and George returned after a national plebiscite proved to him that it was the will of the people.

He fled the country after the German-Italian invasion in 1941 but returned from exile in London in 1946 after another plebiscite.

The childless king died in 1947 and was succeeded by his brother, Paul I, who had a popular and peaceful reign ended by his death in 1964. He was succeeded by his only son, Constantine II, who fled to Rome Wednesday with his family after an abortive coup against the ruling military junta.

Ironically, Constantine is completely non-Greek. In addition to the blood of the ancient Danish house of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Glücksburg, he carries the blood of the Russian, German, English and Hanoverian dynasties in his veins.

Like most of Europe's young royalty, he is a descendant of Britain's Queen Victoria on his mother's side.

Armed Strength Will Stay, Says Martin

NATO Sets Dynamic Peace Course

BRUSSELS (CP) — Canada believes that NATO, while maintaining military strength, has deliberately switched course to pursue "a dynamic quest for peace."

This phrase, expressed by External Affairs Minister Martin, followed the windup of the NATO foreign ministers' conference Thursday after 15 countries, including France, agreed on guidelines for NATO's political future.

The guide, based on year-long studies, emphasized the need of closer NATO consultations and parallel policies in pursuing peace objectives with the Soviet Union and Warsaw pact countries. But, in an obvious concession to France and other unwilling members, it forces no country to follow any collective political policy.

FREE PURSUIT

Each country would be free to pursue its own East-West course, though the new NATO principles emphasized the timely pre-consultations in NATO had to be deepened and improved and that countries should not pursue courses that might split the alliance.

"The chances of success will clearly be greatest if the allies remain on parallel courses," the NATO statement said.

Martin added at a press conference that chances for East-West reduction of arms would be a lot greater if the Vietnam war was over.

U.S. BOMBING

But he could see no immediate hope for peace in Vietnam, nor could he see, after a series of meetings with U.S. State Secretary Rusk, any immediate switch in American bombing policy in North Vietnam.

In Europe there had been evidence of restraint on both sides, but no one could forget, he said, that the Soviet Union had increased its own military preparedness by about 15 per cent. Even the Warsaw pact countries in Eastern Europe had increased their military strength slightly.

But while maintaining armed power, NATO countries had to prepare for the day when peace negotiations become possible, he added. The peace venture was one that could be pursued "both singly and collectively."

"New impetus must also be given to arms control and disarmament measures. New thought must be given to the shape and content of the European settlement which is our ultimate goal and to step toward negotiation of such a settlement."

NUCLEAR PACT

The Soviet Union has gone "a long way" towards the development and support of an East-West pact to halt the spread of nuclear weapons and Martin suggested one reason for the current delay lies in Russia's reluctance to allow international inspection of nuclear activities on its territory.

However, Ross Campbell, Canada's NATO ambassador, said later the more evident reason for the delay lies in Europe where European Common Market members are reluctant to allow inspection of their nuclear activities by an international body outside Euronorm, their nuclear agency.

As the NATO sessions drew to an end, Martin held a number of outside meetings, principally with Turkish and Greek foreign ministers to strengthen hopes for a peaceful settlement of the Cyprus crisis. He felt relieved when he got word from Athens that the situation was quiet in that capital and that the Canadian diplomatic and civilian community there were safe.

However, he was a bit concerned when he heard an unconfirmed report from Turkish

If Pearson ...

47, was the first to say he may run for the leadership.

Others expected to commit themselves soon are Martin, 64, Sharp, 56, Hellyer, 44, Health Minister MacEachen, 46, and Registrar-General Turner 38.

Marchand has said repeatedly that he will not seek the leadership. Eric Kierans, 53, president of the Quebec Liberal Federation, has said the same thing.

SIX REJECTED

Trade Minister Winters, 57, and Revenue Minister Benson, 44, may be in the race.

The Liberals have been thinking about the Conservative example of September when that party rejected all six former cabinet ministers who sought the leadership and elected a provincial premier, Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia. Another premier, Duff Roblin of Manitoba, placed a close second. Thus Liberal Premier Roblin had a dark horse at the Liberal convention.

Pearson said he expects all leadership candidates within his cabinet to stick to their work as ministers and MPs during the next few months.

Only a few weeks ago, however, he kicked off Martin, Sharp and Hellyer for their plans to attend a Liberal meeting in Edmonton. All three cancelled out, along with Turner.

Welfare Patients Face Eviction referred to an earlier communication on the subject of a communication which "ignores" the problem.

The letter gave the city six days to make other arrangements if the $255 fee was not met.

"We must ask that the patients be removed from Glenarry Private Hospital within the six-day period or such other extensions as may be mutually agreeable to the hospital and the city," the letter states.

FEE INCREASE

William Oland, administrator of Glenarroy Hospital, asked $275 per patient per month. If that fee was not met, his letter stated, the city should "make alternative arrangements for the care of the patients in question" by Jan. 1.

"It is not only the 66 patients listed in these letters," said Ald. Wilson who is chairman of the council's welfare committee.

NO ROOM

"That is only part of the problem. It must be remembered that there are 175 other people who desperately need accommodation in hospital. For these people, there is just no room anywhere.

"There just are no beds and I don't know where these people are to go. And there is a lot to be said for the hospital operators. The money paid is just not enough to ensure good care," the alderman added.

NOTHING FOR AGED

If Victoria supplemented the $230 provincial allowance with $45 or more of its own, said Mayor Hugh Stephen, the municipality could become a haven for welfare patients from all over British Columbia.

"This is a terrible situation," said Ald. Cecil Parrott.

"The government says in effect, 'We don't care one iota what happens to the aged and sick.' It seems to have money for lots of other things, but it has nothing for these people."

Ald. Wilson pointed out that the minister of welfare had promised earlier that no welfare patient would be evicted from a private hospital, no matter what happened.

City solicitor T. P. O'Grady said the approach taken by the solicitor for Glenarroy Hospital in the matter of possible damages against the city in the event it did not meet the new scale of fees, was "a novel one."

The possibility of direct action on the part of the hospital operators was "unthinkable," he said.

TOTAL COST

"The aged and sick have top priority, and I think we should do something," said Ald. Hugh Ramsay. "We simply have to do something, and I think it is unfair to ask the hospitals to sit back and carry the load."

He suggested that the city contribute an additional $30 a month to the $230 allowance. That would mean a total cost of about $24,000 a year.

"It would open the door, and I doubt if we would ever get it closed," observed Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood.

Ald. Ramsay did not press the point when it was suggested that an immediate interview be arranged with the minister.

Virus

In 1959, the same year Dr. Kornberg won a Nobel Prize for making DNA in a test tube out of a mixture of inert chemicals.

Dr. Goulian and Dr. Kornberg, reporting in the December issue of Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences, explain that they prepared a test-tube copy of PHI X 174 DNA from a fully active virus.

They used sophisticated laboratory techniques to separate the synthetic material from the original DNA. Then they used the synthetic DNA for further rounds of replication, or continuing cycles of independent existence.

The scientists froze samples of each succeeding version of synthetic DNA and shipped them to Dr. Sinsheimer at Pasadena. Dr. Sinsheimer tested the samples' ability to replicate the complete viruses. And they did replicate, producing fully active synthetic DNA viruses exactly like the original, which were capable of invading other bacteria, Dr. Sinsheimer said.

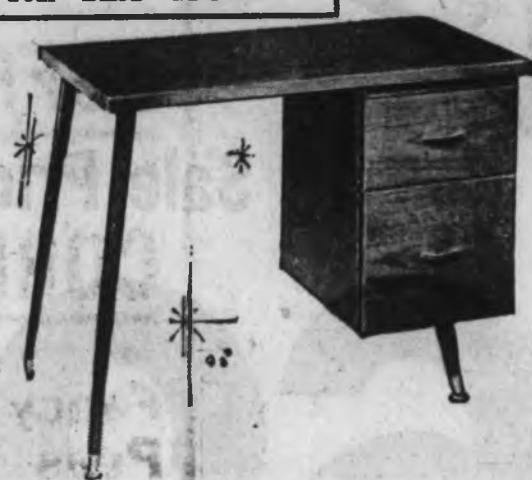

Dr. Kornberg said the Stanford research, culminating almost 11 years of studying DNA synthesis in the test tube, represents an important step forward in understanding how viruses are replicated when they enter cells and how DNA polymerase or similar enzymes make new DNA.

"If we know how to use this enzyme to copy this particular virus, then we can copy other viruses," he said.

A possible application would be controlling certain forms of cancer in the future, he said. DNA found in polyoma virus, for example, produces a variety of cancers in many animals.

SAIGON (AP) — American fighter-bombers duelled Thursday with swarms of MIG jet interceptors as the planes pounded Hanoi and the Halphong area of North Vietnam for the first time since Oct. 23.

One MIG-17 was shot down by navy fighters, the U.S. military command said.

In Saigon, two Viet Cong guerrillas were reported to have assassinated a member of South Vietnam's newly-elected House of Representatives today.

NOTE LEFT

South Vietnamese military headquarters said the member, Bui Quang San, was shot to death Thursday night in a suburb of Saigon.

The guerrillas, who escaped, left a note on San's body condemning him, but the specific contents of the message were not immediately known.

U.S. spokesmen said F-105 Thunderchiefs based in Thailand roared through a break in the heavy monsoon clouds blanketing the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi and attacked the mile-long Doumer rail and highway bridge.

The bridge, 1.7 miles north-east of the centre of Hanoi, spans the Red River and links North Vietnam's industrial area with supply lines from Red China.

GUNS HIT

There was no immediate damage report from Thursday's attack.

The American planes also hit an anti-aircraft site five miles east of Hanoi.

American spokesmen reported no plane losses.

There have been persistent reports that the Russians planned to send the four Americans to Finland or Sweden for propaganda use against the United States.

Progress Sometimes Called Hostility

EDMONTON (CP)—"When an Indian says something it is called hostility. When a white man says the same thing it is called progress."

Chief David Courchene, president of the Manitoba Indian Brotherhood, told the Indian Association of Alberta conference Thursday.

"But the problem is with ourselves as Indians," he said. "We are not organized. If we want self-government, like any other ethnic group in Canada, it must be by self-determination. Unless we show a strong desire to handle our own affairs, someone will continue to do it for us for the next 100 years."

Thousands of Canadian dollars are made available to underdeveloped countries, but an Indian can't get a loan to develop a business on a reserve, the chief said.

"The potential of the Indian is being overlooked."

Chief Courchene has been instrumental in organizing a strong native group in Manitoba.

Missile Targets Multiply

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—A defence department researcher says the United States has developed a space vehicle that can hurl nuclear warheads at several cities.

Dr. John S. Foster Jr., director of defence research and engineering told a dinner of the Dallas chapter of the Association of the U.S. Army and the Dallas Council on World Affairs Wednesday that the "space bus" would counter additional missiles deployed by the Soviet Union.

TARGETS VARY

After the main booster has cut off the bus can make minute adjustments of its speed and direction, and after each adjustment can eject one of the several re-entry vehicles with nuclear warheads that it carries, Foster said.

Thus, each warhead would be delivered on a trajectory to a different city, or if desired, all could be delivered within one city.

The Poseidon, a new missile planned for deployment on Polaris nuclear submarines, will carry the space bus.

WORLD LINK

Foster said a worldwide military satellite communication system with transportable terminals also has been deployed. The system can be moved to any spot in the world so that a local commander can maintain continuous and private communication with the Pentagon or White House.

Canadian Dares Poison Darts

BRASILIA (UPI) — Two missionaries from an American evangelical society Thursday were reported braving poisoned arrows and guns to prevent two Indian tribes from slaughtering each other in an ancient blood feud.

Douglas MacAllister, vice-director of the Evangelical

Christian Mission, associated with Fields Mission based in Philadelphia, Pa., said a Canadian, Dale Snyder, and his wife and infant son were in charge of a mission post on the upper Iriri river which marks the border of the Craincores and their eternal enemies, the Mencomotires.

MacAllister, a naturalized

U.S. citizen who has lived in Brazil since 1939 and who vacations in Madison, Ga., told the Indian Protection Service of a war between the two tribes which has already claimed 24 lives.

“The Snyders are all that keeps the two tribes apart,” he said. “The Mencomotires are partially civilized. They were sent out two months ago to find the Craincores and make the first efforts to civilize them.

“Instead, they raided their villages, hidden in the darkest and most impenetrable parts of the Amazon rain forest.”

“Snyder reports about 24 were killed, including women and children.

“The government had given the Mencomotires rifles, and that made the difference. The Craincores drove the Mencomotires off their lands with their poison arrows centuries ago. The Mencomotires were getting even.”

He told MacAllister the Mencomotires crossed the Iriri on the run, with the taller and enraged Craincores in hot pursuit.

MacAllister said he did not believe the Snyders were in danger despite their exposed position. He said the Craincores are known to hide deep in the jungle, lying in wait and sailing forth when endangered.

How to enjoy the time of your wife.

You married her because she's a great dishwasher? No. You married her because she's a great person to be with. You could be with her more, you know. How about just after dinner when you're settling down for a cozy evening at home? And she's in the kitchen doing dishes.

Sure, the dishes have to be done. But they're done much more quickly, much more thoroughly, too, in an automatic dishwasher. The new washers clean everything: pots, pans, even her finest china. (And all without pre-rinsing.) Just load the dishes in the washer, start it up, and the dishes are done. Dried too. Give yourself the time of your wife. Give her a lifetime holiday from dishes.

Give her a dishwasher for Christmas.

Bleak Shipyard Situation Victoria's Major Problem

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

The Victoria economy has developed a mammoth soft spot on its employment belly as a result of the closure of one of its two major shipyards, and the threat of very little work for the other.

The crisis has come as no surprise — it has been forecast for many months as "inevitable."

The writing was on the wall when the federal government refused to pay a subsidy to West Coast shipyards, and forced the industry here to compete for government jobs on the same basis as the yards of Quebec, Ontario and the Maritimes.

TIME WASTE

"There is no use wasting time and money preparing tenders for jobs under these circumstances," said Harold Hubbard, president of Victoria Machinery Depot, a few weeks before his firm decided to close its shipbuilding section.

The same story is told by John Wallace, managing director of Yarrow's, which is struggling to remain in the business along with Burrard Dry Dock, its Vancouver affiliate.

LOWEST TENDER

Wallace said that Yarrow's did not bid for two recent federal ships — although Burrard did — because it was quite impossible to get anywhere near the tenders that would be made by the St. Lawrence yards. (Burrard's price was more than double that of the lowest tender.)

Why are the B.C. yards so hopelessly non-competitive?

On management's side the blame is placed first on wages (these are on average a dollar an hour higher than those paid in the eastern yards.) A minor second is the question of raw materials and equipment. Most of this has to be shipped to B.C. either from the east or abroad, and this means heavy freight bills.

HIGHEST COSTS

To back up the point, Wallace says that Victoria (and Vancouver) are among the highest-cost yards in the world.

To prove the point, I rang Les Pingle, production manager of the Lockheed Shipyards in Seattle. In the trade, these yards have the reputation of paying higher wages to their shipyard workers than any other company.

ALL JOURNEYMEN

Pingle said that the Lockheed wages for all shipyard journeymen, including welders, electricians, iron workers, pipefitters and machinists was $3.70 an hour. Electronic workers get 15 cents an hour more, or $3.85.

Yarrow's wages are just the same for journeymen ($3.70 an hour) and the only minor wage difference is for electronics workers who get $3.80 here against $3.85 in Seattle.

But Wallace says the working conditions in Seattle are tougher than they are in Victoria.

TEN MINUTES

Victoria shipyard workers get 10 minutes off in the forenoon and ten minutes off in the afternoon as a coffee break. No coffee break is allowed in the Seattle yard.

In Victoria, workers get nine statutory holidays with pay, in Seattle only eight.

MORE GENEROUS

On vacations, too, the B.C. contracts are more generous. Lockheed allows only 3 per cent for vacation pay in the first year. In Victoria it is 4 per cent. After five years service, the vacation is extended in Canada to 6 per cent and after 20 years to 8 per cent. This is between two and four weeks' paid holiday time.

Seattle pays 15 cents an hour for health and welfare, Victoria 20 cents.

"If you take that 20 minutes a day loss of production for coffee, one extra statutory holiday, and the superior fringe benefits, then I think you will have to agree that our wages, and not Seattle's, are the highest in the industry anywhere in the world," said Wallace.

He added the unions had simply priced the yards out of the market.

He noted that as plumbers and electricians in the yards could seek jobs with the plumbing and electric firms in the city, they could make at least 70 cents an hour more than they were getting in the shipyard.

"So you see there is no easy solution to the wage problem," said Wallace.

UP TO DATE

Apart from wages and freight rates, do the Victoria yards stack up as well as those in eastern Canada so far as methods, equipment and facilities are concerned?

"Certainly," said Hubbard recently. "We had brought ourselves right up to date, and I would say our local yards are completely efficient."

There the matter stands. Unless costs can be reduced, and a few dollars here and there isn't enough, saving shipbuilding as a B.C. industry looks hopeless.

MASS UNEMPLOYMENT

The unions and civic authorities, appalled at the thought of mass unemployment in the yards, are not only trying to bring pressure to bear on the federal government, but they want to see Canada establish a merchant marine.

Wallace thinks they are not being realistic in the second demand.

"You can't force Canadian shipping firms to build ships they don't have uses for," he said.

While he admits that it is not a good time to be going around the Peace Tower looking for subsidies when the country is screaming for lower government expenditures, Wallace does not think Ottawa has been fair to the West in its shipbuilding cuts.

More than $68,000,000 in shipbuilding cuts has been announced, and $34,500,000, or more than 50 per cent, is for West Coast work.

"We should not have to bear so much of the burden," he said. "We need the work much more than they do in the East, where there are many government vessels now under construction. We have none, and none in sight."

What Wallace wants the government to do now, and so save the B.C. shipbuilding industry, is to reinstate the rest of the first of three destroyer escort conversions, which had been scheduled for Burrard at a cost of $4,500,000.

Bernard O. Brynensen, P.Eng., of Vancouver, B.C., has been appointed a director of James United Steel Limited. It is announced by James F. MacArthur, president. Mr. Brynensen, western manager of Noranda Exploration Company Limited, is president of Brenda Mines Limited, a director of the Bank of British Columbia and of several Canadian mining companies. James United Steel is a Calgary-based company with manufacturing plants, warehouses and offices across Canada.

Toronto Iron Works has asked Toronto Stock Exchange to cease trading its shares because of rumors about the company's financial position.

The company, which lost money in the first half of 1967, posted its second Jan. 1 dividend of 11 1/4 cents, and G. E. Ellsworth said such a payment would not be justified.

However, he denied that Toronto Iron Works was insolvent, and added its assets were greater than its liabilities. However, he admitted to a shortage of working capital and said the company was looking for additional funds to correct the situation.

HIGHER YIELD
The yield on 91-days of Canada treasury bills this week rose to 5.75 per cent from 5.55 per cent a week ago.

BEHIND THE GLASS

By Jim Tang

EXPERIMENT STARTS: What appears to be a promising experiment starts this weekend in Victoria when entries from the five South Island curling clubs decide the four rinks which will qualify for the Island zone mixed-rinks final in a bonspiel style playoff.

With 33 entries in, it will mean a lot of curling crammed into two days for rinks which take the long route in the double-knockout competition but to most this is preferable to the dragged-out affairs of past seasons when each club held its own protracted playoff to decide representatives for the South Island final.

South Island men's playoff will hold to the same bonspiel format with a weekend playoff here on Jan. 6 and 7. With entries due to close today, 25 rinks have paid their entry fees to assure a successful competition.

ESQUIMALT LEADS: Esquimalt lead the mixed-rinks entry with 11 rinks — entered by Steve Dwernychuk, John Merrifield, Jack Smith, Al Paterson, Sam Snobelen, Art Snodgrass, Lyle Gordon, Don Edl, Wayne Buck, Don Cooke and Gordon Hooley.

Jim Coffey, Elmer Hoffman, Gar Taylor, Al Smith, Ken Nurdinger, Keith Mackenzie, Ken Sturrock, Dave Johnston, Keith Dagg and Don Matheson will skip the 10 entries from the Victoria Curling Club. From Allan's are Bob Gallagher, Ed Taylor, Bert Fee, John Flynn and Paul Raikie; from Duncan are Glen Harper, Fred Duncan, Harry Dewar and Bob Bell and the Victoria Racquets Club will be represented by Michael Falkins and Ev Valleau and Jack Punshon, who were drawn against each other.

First round of the playoff starts at 8 tomorrow morning and games will be played at Esquimalt Municipal Centre, Allan's and the Victoria Curling Club. Semi-finals in the "A" event will be at Esquimalt at 8 Sunday morning, in "B" event at Esquimalt at 4:15 p.m. The two survivors in each case carry on to the Island final at the Victoria Curling Club, Jan. 27 and 28.

Twenty-four of the rinks will play their first game at 8 tomorrow morning. Falkins, Coffey, Merrifield, Hoffman, J. Smith, Gallagher, Paterson, Snobelen, E. Taylor, Snodgrass, A. Smith and Harper at Esquimalt; G. Taylor, Gordon, Fee, Nurdinger, Duncan, Edl, Buck and Mackenzie at Allan's and Flynn, Dewar, Valleau and Punshon at the Victoria Curling Club.

Sturrock, Bell, Raikie, Johnston, Dagg, Cooke, Hooley and Matheson play their first games at Esquimalt at 10:15 and Dwernychuk plays his first game at 12:30 p.m. against the winner of Falkins and Coffey, the two unfortunates who were drawn to start in the 64s.

READY AND WAITING: North Island ladies' didn't waste any time getting their two rinks out for the Island final, scheduled at the Campbell River Club on Jan. 6 and 7.

Qualifying for the four-rink Island playoff were Evelyn Strzaker of the Alberni Valley Curling Club and Jackie Serjeant of Campbell River.

Mrs. Strzaker, who skips for Ilene Berard, Jean Earthy and June Haggard, won the "A" event in the six-rink double-knockout playoff held last weekend.

Mrs. Serjeant, Eleanor Giese, Kathy Enns and Jackie Langdon took a more hair-raising route to the final.

They started out by getting clobbered, 14-1, by Jessie Whittam of Nanaimo and then were almost victimized by an eight-ender in the "B" final when they seemed to have it in the bag.

The "B" final was a return go with Mrs. Whittam, but this time the Nanaimo rink dropped far back early. It made a bid to pull even on the eighth end and Mrs. Serjeant, with last rock against her, was faced with seven opposing counters when she went into the back for her last rock. She executed perfectly, drawing to shot rock and winding up by stealing a point and had a six-up lead coming home.

Seven rinks, two from the Victoria Curling Club, two from Allan's, two from Esquimalt and one from Duncan will play a double-knockout at the VOC on Dec. 29 and 30 to declare the two rinks who will face the up-Island champions.

Already qualified are Flora Martin (evening) and Lee Jameson (afternoon) of the Victoria club, with Mrs. Martin as Verle McKeown, Marian Smith and Sadie Campbell and with Mrs. Jameson as Helen Yoachim, Dot Doherty and Trudy Hocking.

EXTRA END: Alberni Valley Curling Club already has its two rinks ready for the men's playdowns. Coming out from "A" and "B" event, respectively, in the six-rink, double-knockout club final were Jim Marasco (Chuck Turgen, Ken Coomber, Neal Pennington) and Earl Ewart (Wayne Reid, Bruce Folkard, Arnie Johnson) ... four rinks, entered by Harry Strzaker, Marasco, Turgen and Louie Houle, will play off this weekend in the AVCC mixed-rinks competition ... at the Nanaimo Curling Club, rinks entered by Don MacRae and Norm Thiesen were the first winners in the five-rink, round-robin men's playdowns. Other rinks are entered by Glen Phillips, Harry Shyacka and Harry Whittam ... entries for the Nanaimo men's bonspiel, March 7-10, already total at least 10 more rinks than the limit of 42 and there are only a couple of spots left for the women's mixed, Jan. 26-28 ... tomorrow night is the date of the annual "turkey shoot" at the Victoria Curling Club ... Keith and Ray Dagg, Jack Trueman and Barry Harvey didn't manage to make it two money bonspiels in a row on their recent trip to Revelstoke but reports state they curled well. The Victoria rink defeated Duncan's Glen Harper in its first game, lost to Calgary's Lloyd Woolley, the eventual winner, and then were knocked out of the affair by Buzz McGibbey of Trail ... it's beginning to appear reasonably certain that the age limit for the Canadian seniors' championship will be reduced to 50 years after the 1968 final. That's certain to bring in some of the 55-year-olds who refused to admit they were eligible this season.

Colony Inn, Labatts Win

Colony Inn and Labatts used similar formulas Thursday night to score wins and remain tied for second place in the Victoria Men's Senior Basketball league.

Both pulled away in the second half after being held in check until half-time by their opposition.

Farmer Construction matched Colony, 30-30, in the first half but with only five players in uniform couldn't hang on the rest of the way and bowed, 78-53.

Labatts had a tougher time with Red Lion Inn. Tied 27-27 at half-time, the clubs staged a seesaw battle the rest of the way and no more than five points separated them at any time as the brewers gained a 64-59 decision.

COLONY INN (78)—Kerry Greenwood 4, Dave Emery 7, Olie Goldsmith 7, Bill Wilson 15, Ed Steele 7, Jim Cunningham 15, Wayne Allen 4, Mike Sol-Lice 10.

FARMER CONSTRUCTION (58)—Dick Sparto 5, Jordan Ellis 16, Vic Westcott 5, Don Farquhar 15, Fred Gubels 4.

LABATTS (64)—Joe Patterson 8, Ed Kowalski 8, John Devlin 21, Gordie Jones 12, Bob Brown, Chuck Bennett 2, Larry Montgomery 8, Barry Jackson 4, Don Strunk, Bill Munro 4.

RED LION INN (58)—Dai Leland 21, Skip Porteous 4, Joe Stewart 2, Ken McDonald 4, Jack Lusk 2, Ian McDonald 2, Charlie Granwell 4, John Ball 2.

Island Selects rugby match to be played Saturday at 2 p.m. on the McDonald Park pitch.

Oak Bay opened the scoring as Mike Blades crossed the goal line for the try. Claremont bounced back as Phil Newton drove over to tie the score and Ted Clark gave the league leaders a 6-3 half-time lead with a field goal.

Claremonts victory, although its third straight in league play, was unimpressive as the game was ragged and loose on a frozen pitch.

PLAYERS MISSING Both teams played without the services of several key players. Claremont's were Evelyn Strzaker of the Alberni Valley Curling Club and Jackie Serjeant of Campbell River.

John Unitas of the unbeaten Baltimore Colts, imperturbable when faced with blizzards, hordes of cheering fans—or even with lavish praise—was impressive as ever when he learned of his latest honor Thursday.

IMPRESSIVE RESPONSE "It's nice to know that people feel I deserve the award," Unitas said, "but it doesn't make a whole lot of difference to me if I'm named all this or all that. Winning an award doesn't help a team on the scoreboard."

The 34-year-old quarterback, who earns about $125,000 a season, received 40 votes in a poll of NFL sports writers and sportscasters conducted by The Associated Press.

Chicago Within Point Of First Place Bruins

Bobby Hull can be checked from time to time but no one is stopping Stan Mikita these days, and Chicago Black Hawks have moved with their starry centremen to within one point of the Eastern Division lead in the National Hockey League.

Mikita scored his 18th goal and set up the second of two goals by Doug Mohns Thursday Hawks had barely held out against a steady Detroit attempt to get even.

Norm Ullman got a third-period goal for the Wings with Dennis Hull serving a penalty but Howie Young was penalized less than six minutes later for interfering with Mohns and Mikita took a pass from Pierre Pilote, skated across the Detroit goalmouth and whipped the puck home.

In last night's other game, the improving St. Louis Blues again got good performances from two recent rookie additions to extend their unbeaten streak to four games with a 2-2 tie with the Flyers in Philadelphia.

Gary Sabourin and Frank St. Marseille, who joined the club in the past week, fed each other scoring passes as the Blues took the lead twice against a club which had beaten them four times this season.

But the Flyers had an answer in Brit Seiby, the Toronto rookie star of two seasons ago, who spent most of injury-hampered last season with Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League.

Seiby, who had been idled for five weeks with a shoulder separation, returned to the Philadelphia lineup to get both goals for the Flyers. They were his first of the season. Two Flyer goals were disallowed, one because it was batted in by hand and the other because it came after a whistle.

Result moved the Flyers into a first-place tie with Los Angeles Kings in the expansion division and pushed the Blues two points ahead of the last-place Oakland Seals.

The Chinook Club has scheduled its second Frostbite Derby of the season Sunday from daybreak to 2 p.m. in Saanich Inlet, and it may be exactly that... a derby in which anglers will have to break ice to fish.

Thursday, the only two Brentwood bathhouses in full operation were Jim Gilbert's Bathhouse and Dave Adams' Brentwood Boat Rentals, and they had to break a path through the ice to reach the water that has been kept ice-free by the operation of the Mill Bay ferry.

In Finlayson Arm, big tides have kept the waters free of ice except for patches floating about. Boat operators should be warned about navigating in ice. The thin skins, especially, can hole a boat.

If anglers can get fishing in Saanich Inlet this weekend, they will have a good chance of picking up good-sized winter springs and no difficulty getting grise—if they want them.

Art Hall reports winter springs up to about 14 pounds between his docks and Goldstream Island in Finlayson Arm.

Tommy Moss has been trying out a new purple-colored Tomick plug in the mouth of Tod Inlet and on Wednesday in three hours of fishing got a 2½-pounder, a 17-pounder and a couple of others. Other boats averaged two fish each, with fish taking all day. Pearl pink plugs have been working well and 125 feet of wire line and a planer has been the right depth to fish.

Grise are in abundance on the Bamberton side and are being taken of flies and flasher with two to six-ounce weights. Some winter springs are being taken in Sidney waters.

All areas from Sidney, through to Sooke report grise in abundance, and these are plaguing serious winter spring fishermen who have difficulty getting their lines down below the grise to catch the bigger salmon. But the abundance of grise indicates some good fishing next year.

George Gunnis has been hitting good winter spring fishing off Ten Mile Point for salmon up to 16 pounds on Strip-Teaser with no dodger.

Trial Island and Fiddle Reef have been best areas for winter springs for anglers from Oak Bay. Victoria waterfront and Esquimalt Harbor are still good bets and Pedder Bay, Beecher Bay and Sooke all report some success.

Buzz Bombers are still getting chum salmon in Cowichan Bay, with heavy catches recorded up to the 3th week of the derby, which ends Christmas Eve, an 18.2-pounder caught by Ian Kelly of Stelly's Cross Road. So far Buzz Bombers have entered 214 chum salmon, 45 blueback grise, 22 coho and 24 winter springs.

Green and white octopus hootchies have been taking winter springs in Cowichan Bay.

Springs are being taken in Sansum Narrows under the power line and keeper-grise at Crofton.

Winter springs fishing is also reported fair in Departure Bay, Nanosee waters and in Comox Bay, with Strip Teaser most productive lure.

Most rivers have been in full flood, but these cool days will soon bring them back to fishing levels, and if it continues will draw them down to levels too low for the best fishing.

Campbell River, a controlled flow, has been producing a few steelhead. Quinsam has been high, despite the cold weather. The Gold may be in good shape for this weekend, and if it is it will likely be one of the best bets on the Island. Puntledge has been producing some steelhead.

Murray Creek reports Big Qualeum, Little Qualeum and Englishman "dropping nicely" and all should be worth trying. Charles Huzar landed a 16-pound steelhead in the Cowichan on Spin 'n' Glo Thursday morning in the Davis Pool at the bend below the Stoltz picnic grounds. The Cowichan is in good shape and some success has been reported from both the Riverbottom and White Bridge areas. Sooke River could be in top condition this weekend.

Harris Creek, as always, has been giving up some nice steelhead.

Deer trophy award presentations will be made at the meeting of the Sooke Rod and Gun Club 8 p.m. Sunday in the Sooke Community Hall dining room. There will be trophies for the heaviest deer, the best set of antlers and for junior members with heaviest deer.

Skiing Conditions 'Fair'

Following the rain which interfered with what had been perfect conditions last weekend, skiing at Green Mountain this weekend will be "fair."

There is 24 inches of base snow but no new snow has fallen. Temperature is expected to be 23 degrees and only the rope tow will be in operation. The road is open and the restaurant and snowmobiles will be operating.

Open Tennis Planned

Suspension Threat Defied

LONDON (AP) — Britain's tennis fathers voted Thursday for open tournaments despite threatened suspension by the international organization that controls the sport in all parts of the world.

In open tournaments amateurs and professionals compete in the same event with the amateurs getting trophies and the pros receiving cash prizes, the same as in golf.

The change was made by substituting the word "players" for "amateurs" in the rules.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jack Kramer who controlled all professional tennis players contracts up to 1965, Thursday, hailed the British action as "courageous" and said the move "will make tennis a great game for all."

amateurs and professional in the British rules. Thus all competitors now carry the same designation. It will become effective April 22, two days before the start of the British hard court tournament.

The International Federation had threatened to suspend the British association if it had gone through with its original plan to have the new rule become effective on Jan. 1.

Wimbledon now is open to the professionals. It has been the major shrine of amateur tennis since 1877.

Just how the various national associations and the international federation will react is not known although few countries

Guinness pulls this off five million times a day

How's that for openers?

Why do people drink five million glasses of Guinness daily? Well, it could be Guinness' delightful touch of bitterness. Or that rich, creamy texture. Or perhaps its deep ruby colour. This old Irish brew is unique. Constantly unique. Now in British Columbia, Guinness is available where beer is sold and enjoyed. So why don't you discover the brew that tastes like no other on earth. Just for a change.

Sharp Pledges Study

Carter Report Not Rejected

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Sharp Thursday rejected charges that he has dumped the Carter report on taxation and that his mini-budget is designed to increase unemployment.

Speaking in Commons debate on budget resolutions, Mr. Sharp said many newspapers interpreted his Nov. 30 budget speech as saying he ditched the Carter report.

"My words do not say that."

'NOT EVERYTHING'

While he favored tax reform, he was not sure he could accept everything the report recommended. The government would prepare a white paper on tax reform which would reflect its study of the report.

He rejected the suggestion that the report first go to a joint committee of Parliament. It was the government's responsibility to consider the most delicate matter of tax reform and the government did not intend to take the easy way out and ask a committee to decide such matters for it.

EXAMPLE

Mr. Sharp said the only government he knew of that had deliberately raised unemployment was Britain's Labor government.

It was a good example of what not to do, and the Canadian government had no intention of following in Britain's footsteps.

"The intention (of the budget) was to take an ounce of prevention and to guard against this pound of cure," said Mr. Sharp.

He also said the income tax changes imposing a five-per-cent surtax of up to $600 on wages meant an increase in taxes for all Canadians paying up to $12,000 in taxes.

This meant that only 20,000 Canadians with incomes of more than $32,000 yearly would escape the increase.

Marcel Lambert (PC-Edmonton West) said the New Democratic Party's stand that the Carter report should be implemented in whole at once was a dangerous one.

There was "no crashing need to implement the report" and it should be carefully studied before any action was taken.

'Satisfactory' Talks For B.C.

OTTAWA (CP) — Without divulging details, Labor Minister Nicholson told the Commons Thursday "highly satisfactory talks" took place Wednesday between federal officials and representatives of the B.C. government on the housing situation.

He was replying to Grace MacInnis (NDP-Vancouver Kingsway) who noted reports that satisfactory talks took place with representatives of the Ontario government and wondered whether similar results had been achieved with B.C. officials.

Martin Non-Committal But Greene May Run

From CP

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin of Canada, commenting in Brussels Thursday night on Prime Minister Pearson's decision to retire, said Brussels is not the place to make a statement about his own political future.

Martin indicated in an interview he may make a statement about the Liberal party leadership race when he returns to Ottawa today.

NOTHING TO SAY

"Naturally I will have nothing to say until I go back home," Martin said as he returned from a dinner given by Belgian Foreign Minister Pierre Harmel.

Asked whether Prime Minister Pearson had given him any advance notice that he would announce Thursday his intention to resign, Martin would only reply that he had spoken to Pearson by transatlantic telephone on that day. He declined to disclose the nature of the conversation.

HE'S SORRY

Martin, 54, said he is sorry that Pearson has found it necessary to resign as leader of the Liberal party.

In Ottawa, Agriculture Minister Greene said Thursday he will be a candidate for the Liberal leadership if events show he has a fighting chance. He told reporters he will assess his strengths, discuss the question with his supporters and make his decision known early next year.

"If I have a fighting chance, I will certainly be in there with 'em," he said.

Greene said he has conducted no campaign to date and has made no leadership commitments of any kind.

Other prominent cabinet ministers regarded as possible contenders were more non-committal than Greene.

Among them was Transport Minister Hellyer, who brushed off the are-you-a-candidate question with the comment:

NOT THE TIME

"I think it is a natural question, but this is not the time to discuss it."

Elsewhere:

● In Prince Albert, John Diefenbaker said Pearson's

move "cannot but add" to confusion and uncertainty in the Canadian economy, and the country's unity, noting that the day has passed when Canadian prime ministers remain in office for long periods of time.

● In Montreal, Robert Stanfield, national Tory leader, said Pearson has "worked sincerely in the best interests of his country."

● Another compliment was paid Pearson by former prime minister Louis St. Laurent. He said in Quebec City Pearson has been "a good leader for the Liberal party and a good prime minister for Canada."

● Back in Ottawa, Senator John Nichol of Vancouver, president of the Liberal Federation of Canada, indicated the Grit convention to pick Pearson's successor is virtually certain to be held in the nation's capital next spring.

● Also in Ottawa, Tory spokesmen speculated about Pearson's successor, while NDP leader T.C. Douglas suggested the choice should be made quickly. He said he expects a general election not earlier than June and not later than October, 1968, as a result of the Pearson decision.

"The only serious thing is that there's going to be a lame-duck government for the next four months," Douglas said.

● Again in Ottawa, even Pearson's close colleagues were caught by surprise when his decision was made public Thursday, they admitted.

Said Greene: "It caught me with my trousers at half-mast. If that is a proper governmental expression."

Pension Prospects Identical

OTTAWA (CP) — When Prime Minister Pearson leaves Parliament he automatically will qualify for two pensions worth a total of $19,686 a year.

The 70-year-old prime minister announced Thursday he will step down as soon as the Liberal party elects his successor. He will remain MP for Algoma East until the next election but will not run again.

There is an automatic pension of $16,686 for former prime ministers when they leave Parliament. In addition, any MP who has served through three Parliaments qualifies on departure for a $3,000 pension.

Identical provisions apply to John Diefenbaker, former Conservative prime minister who was replaced as party leader in September but is continuing as MP for Prince Albert.

Saanich Officer Praised

A Saanich police identification officer was commended Thursday in central magistrate's court for his work in helping to break a burglary case.

Magistrate William Ostler sentenced William Goetken, 24, of 3229 Doncaster and Robert Foley, 19, of 512 Menzies to three years apiece for the recent break-in at the Royal Canadian Naval Sailing Association, basing his conviction on "fine threads of evidence" woven by Det. Herbert Clarke.

The two men, both with long records of similar offenses, were charged with breaking into the naval sailing club headquarters at 1001 Maplebank around midnight Nov. 23, and stealing money and liquor.

Det. Clarke's evidence showed a thumbprint of Goetken's on a fragment of glass found on the premises; glove prints that matched a pair of gloves found in the getaway car; fragments of putty in the gloves and fragments of gold paint in the gloves, similar to the labels of rum bottles taken from the premises and found in a house where the two were believed to have partied after the offence.

Magistrate Ostler said the evidence was purely circumstantial and would not have been conclusive enough to warrant a conviction without the fine police work by Det. Clarke.

Prosecutor Cory Stolte said Foley had broken into the same place on a previous occasion, by the same method, through a door leading into a washroom.

Sargit Singh Baines, 33, of 910 Market, was sentenced to two months in jail on a charge of impaired driving, in spite of a lengthy defence which included calling Prosecutor Stolte to the stand as a defence witness.

Baines asked Mr. Stolte if he had threatened a Crown witness with being charged as a public nuisance if he didn't testify, and the unannounced counsel answered shortly, "No," before returning to the prosecution table.

Baines claimed he had not been driving Nov. 4 when he was arrested on Cook near Johnson, in the passenger seat of another man's car.

A second charge of driving while under suspension was dropped when Crown offered no evidence.

Baines will serve the sentence consecutive to another sentence he is serving after failing to pay a fine for a similar conviction, Oct. 10.

Thomas Ferguson, 41, of 3708 Tillicum was fined $350 for impaired driving and had his licence suspended.

He was stopped early Thursday in the intersection of Vancouver and Fort after he was observed driving erratically, east on Yates.

Roger Cardinal, 20, of CFB Esquimalt was fined $35 for being a minor in a licensed premises.

Harold Skinner of 160 Beechwood received a touch of Christmas clemency when he was bound over in his own recognizance to keep the peace for six months, on a vagrancy conviction.

Skinner told of being a war veteran who had spent much time in hospitals, had had many operations and had been temporarily blind for a period. He admitted having a drinking problem.

His problem Dec. 8, however, was different — he chose an off-duty policeman's house to do his begging.

Fined in central traffic court for careless driving:

Cedric Anthousen of 142 Beechwood, $35; David Holmon of 856 Cowper, $40; Philip Kitley of 2171 Wermer, $40; Terence Lewis of 36 Fenton, $35; George Myren of Vancouver, $50; Eileen Nelson of 3072 Admirals, $40.

'Tis Season to Be Jolly-Careful

Tree Really Needs Drink

By DON GAIN

'Tis the season to be jolly — jolly careful with your Christmas tree, says Saanich Fire Chief Joseph Sutherland.

The chief, whose first fire as a young fireman, was a blazing Christmas tree, had some hard-headed advice on the subject Thursday.

This year he's been helped by the federal department of forestry and rural development, which has published a brochure, A Safe and Living Christmas Tree.

TESTS IN EAST

The experiments are the basis for the brochure and were conducted on balsam fir, Scots pine and white spruce trees at an experimental station in Chalk River, Ont.

Half the trees were cut 6½ weeks in advance and stored outdoors under unheated shelter. The other half were cut two days in advance. All were then installed upright in the same room for 21 days, half of each group with butts in water, and other half dry.

QUICK HAZARD

The moisture content of the dry-butt trees dropped rapidly after installation indoors. All became flammable by match ignition within 15 days, with some trees reaching this hazardous condition after only three days.

Here are the important hints:

● Do not purchase a tree that has dried out. Trees that are too dry have brittle branches that shed needles easily. Test twigs and needles for flexibility.

● Store tree outdoors, preferably under shade, until it is to be used. If it must be stored indoors, recut butt and immerse in water. Maintain water supply.

● When tree is to be erected, recut butt diagonally an inch or more above original cut. Stand tree in water and maintain water supply for duration of tree's use.

● Effectiveness of butt immersion has its limitations. A tree whose moisture content has dropped to a critical point before immersion will not recover, but will continue to dry out, even while standing in water.

● Check the tree for flexibility 24 hours after erecting. If there is any sign of lessened flexibility in needles or twigs, the tree should be removed.

● Even a tree with 100 per cent moisture content will not withstand a complete ring of flames at its base. Highly combustible material, such as tissue-wrapped gifts, presents a fire hazard in itself.

PRECAUTIONS

The chief mentioned some other precautions, such as keeping flame from the tree; checking strings of lights for frayed wires, broken sockets and loose connections; using flameproof decorations and disposing of gift wrappings safely — not in the fireplace.

"And don't leave your tree lights on when nobody's in the house," he said.

Hasty Start for Regional Boards Hurts Program Says Campbell

TRAIL (CP) — Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell has told the Kootenay boundary regional district too many regional district boards are being established without having "sold" their citizens on the purposes and aims of the new form of government.

The minister said in a letter to the board the hasty imposition of rules and regulations sets back the whole program. The intent of a board is misunderstood and resented and nothing can be done until public confidence is restored.

Mr. Campbell said he also looks with some uneasiness at the situation where regional district boards establish large planning operations too quickly.

Car Insurance, of course

Car insurance that for 35¢ can mean plenty in terms of guaranteed financial protection.

You could be in an accident today. The repair bill could be staggering. But your collision insurance would take care of it, except for your deductible.

Your car might catch fire. Or be stolen. A lot of things can happen when you aren't even near it. And you'd be very glad you have "Comprehensive" Insurance.

Worst of all, say you injure another person or damage someone else's car or property. That's when you need your public liability insurance. Without it, you might spend the rest of your life paying other people's bills.

That 35¢ a day certainly guarantees a lot when you think of it this way.

Car insurance is really a bargain of benefits. But even though "you're covered", drive safely. It's the best way to safeguard yourself, your family and your car against accidents.

Jurymen Refuse To Indict Their 'Doctor'

GROVETON, Tex. (UPI)

A grand jury made up of Freddie Michael Brant's fellow townsmen Thursday refused to indict the man who was Groveton's only "doctor" until he turned out to be an ex-convict and impostor.

Brant, who worked at the Terrell state mental hospital for three years as a "psychiatric resident" before hanging out his shingle in Groveton, has already been charged in that county with perjury and forgery.

The Trinity County grand jury refused to bring any new charges. It returned several indictments in its Thursday session, but district clerk Betty Mae Alsworth said one against Brant "was not among them."

NO JUDGMENT
She said she did not know, however, whether the jury had returned a no-bill or had simply passed the matter without judgment.

Brant, a 43-year-old former Louisiana who served time for his part in a bank robbery and picked up medical knowledge at night school and working in a hospital, stopped off at Groveton last summer, treated a boy with a slashed leg, as "Dr. Reid Brown" and stayed there, treating people for five months.

CHARGES FILED
When both he and the real Dr. Reid Brown, a Chattanooga, Tenn., physician, turned in drug orders at the same pharmaceutical house, he was unmasked. The original charges were filed as a result of his three years at the Terrell hospital.

Out on $10,000 bond on the perjury and forgery charges, Brant returned to Groveton Thursday but did not testify before the grand jury on orders from his attorney, Emmett Colvin of Dallas.

MOST of the grand jury members knew Brant for the past five months as "Dr. Brown" and Brant said he had treated at least one.

'AGAIN SHOCKED'
"I'm again shocked at the kindness and consideration of these fine people," Brant said after the decision.

Brant came to Texas from Chattanooga, where he worked at the physicians and surgeons hospital as a medical technician.

He took the name Reid Brown from a real doctor at the hospital and under it got a photostatic copy of a medical degree from the University of Tennessee. With the degree, he got a licence to practice in

Abortion Bribes Claimed

TORONTO (CP) — The legal department of the Metropolitan Toronto police has advised Chief James Mackey not to sue three women who accused morality officers of taking bribes in abor-

The chief conferred with the department Wednesday and was told the remarks are privileged because they were made at a hearing before the House of

Myna Wood, Peggy Morton and Linda Seese, all of Toronto, told the committee Tuesday they believed police were taking bribes from abortionists. The committee is investigating abortion laws.

Under questioning the women admitted they had no proof of their accusations and were only repeating rumors.

By giving they'll

Now Calvert is drying up the gin business.

As for Calvert is concerned, nobody has ever made a gin dry enough for Canadian tastes.

Until now.

Our new gin is more than very dry. It's very very dry. And we're not keeping it a secret as to how we did it.

First, we went to Borneo for the tart, unopened Calvert berry.
Then we went to the parched Mediterranean for pods of St. John's bread.

These are the ingredients that make our gin so dry. And as far as we know, nobody else has ever used them before.

So try our new gin.

Not only is it very very dry, it's also very very good.

If 1967 proved anything to us, it's this: wise investments pay off. Again. (We've been proving that to ourselves for the past 70 years—and to our clients.) As our figures show, we have bettered our previous year's performance in every aspect of our operation. Again. National Trust—one of Canada's largest trust companies—now administers over $1,600 million of other people's money. And we do it well. We rely on our investment experts—professionals in every investment field. And since our only obligation is to our clients, we can be objective: we're in a position to consider all investment opportunities. The combination of these factors has a noticeable effect on the money we look after. It makes more of itself. Our clients know what our investment experience does for them. That's why they're looking forward to 1968. So are we.

All Baggage Suspicious

MONTREAL (CP) — The arrest of six men and seizure of about 75 pounds of heroin worth an estimated $30,000,000 on the illicit market has exposed a vast international heroin smuggling ring operating through Montreal International Airport.

Five men were arrested Wednesday, four when they arrived on flights from Europe and South America and one in a downtown hotel. A sixth was arrested at the airport Tuesday when a customs officer noticed he was carrying a case similar to one in which the officer had discovered a false bottom containing heroin earlier this year.

MAJOR CHECK

The RCMP and customs officials began a major check of all travellers arriving at the airport with South American or Italian passports. It turned up four couriers and led to the arrest in the Queen Elizabeth Hotel of a man who had arrived before Tuesday's arrest.

Giuseppe Kuatona, 39, Andrea Settenbre, 43, Giuseppe Sarago, 42, and Gennaro Sinicelli, 44, have been charged with illegally importing heroin into Canada. Carmine Rousso, 43, who was arrested in his hotel room, was charged with illegal possession of heroin.

ANOTHER CHARGED

On Wednesday, Vincenzo Caputo, 42, was charged with illegally importing heroin. All were held for preliminary hearing Dec. 20. Bail was refused.

The men had travelled round-about routes from Europe and South America and all were destined for New York.

Caputo was arrested when Noel Gauthier, a customs officer at the airport, noticed a suitcase similar to one in which he discovered heroin earlier this year, as the result of which a Marseilles man was sentenced to seven years' imprisonment.

MASSIVE HUNT

Caputo's arrest sparked off a massive international police operation involving the RCMP, U.S. federal agents and Interpol, the international police organization with headquarters outside Paris.

Persons arriving from Europe and South America and carrying "suspect" passports were subjected to thorough personal searches as well as having their baggage examined.

Some of the heroin was found in the false bottoms of suitcases and some in money belts.

There's a Touch of Cosa Nostra in the Air

NEW YORK (AP) — The traveller moving through Kennedy or La Guardia airport sees shops, restaurants, ticket counters and airline lounges — all bright and orderly. What he doesn't see behind the facade is a jet age jungle of criminal activity.

New York harbor, the busiest in the United States, long has been a domain of labor racketeers, strong-arm men and thieves. Now the underworld is reaching out, as well, for control of metropolitan airports.

A state investigation commission hearing, in its third day today, has taken testimony about mounting racketeer control over the handling of 620,000 tons of air freight, worth $6,300,000,000, which annually moves through Kennedy and La Guardia. This compares to 63,000 tons a decade ago.

The phenomenal rise in the air freight business has attracted Cosa Nostra mobsters, the commission has been told. Teamsters Union local officers were pictured as enforcing a near-monopoly in airline cargo handling by a mob-controlled amalgamation of trucking firms.

Commission counsel Paul Kelly testified the Cosa Nostra began moving in on the Metropolitan Import Truckmen's Association, representing about 80 trucking firms with Teamster contracts that serve the airports and the waterfront.

Airlines suddenly found themselves barred from doing business with any but MITA truckers.

It's too bad about the partridge. And the pear tree. We'd add them if we could — just to make our jolly old green-and-red label even more Christmasy. But you can see the problem. We're a little pushed for space. So instead, we'll simply wish you a warm and wonderful Yuletide from all of us here at Molson's. From the rabbit. And the crows. And the dog. Social Workers:

Welfare Too Low

Welfare payments in the province are too low to permit normal decent living for recipients, says a statement of protest being drawn up in Victoria by social workers.

Social workers from all over B.C. are signing the declaration which originates with the Social Action Committee of the Vancouver Island Branch, B.C. Social Workers Association.

Committee chairman Reginald Clarkson said his committee was hoping to win public support for submissions which had been made repeatedly to the provincial government.

CONCERN VOICED

The statement voices the concern of the social workers over the hardship and degradation of families and individuals receiving social assistance payments.

"Many professional studies have shown that rates of payment over the past five years have been so low as to cause extreme hardship for the recipients," says the statement.

LAST INCREASE

"Since the last increase in rates in June, 1965, there has been a 9-per-cent increase in the cost-of-living index.

"The minister of social welfare has defended his decision not to establish a professionally competent group to determine what the rates should be, by saying each case is treated individually and overage allowances ensure that no person suffers extreme hardship.

WITHIN RATES

"It is our experience that overage allowances (extra payments above basic rates to meet emergency needs) are not applied in this way.

"All clients are expected to live within the rates, and only rarely are overage allowances approved.

Before Crash

Driver Admits Drinks

Some drinking had been going on before a fatal crash at Oakridge and Russell Nov. 19 in which Mrs. Martha Kovats met her death, a coroner's jury was told Thursday.

Student nurse Irene Kosa of St. Joseph's Hospital said she had been in army Cpl. Timothy John Ogilvie's apartment on the afternoon of the accident.

Ogilvie was the driver of the car involved in the crash with the Kovats' car.

GLASS OF EYE

She said she didn't see Ogilvie drink anything. She had a glass of eye.

Sharon Brown, another student nurse, said Ogilvie arrived to pick them up at the student nurses' home at 4:30 p.m. There were four other girls at the apartment.

Cpl. Ogilvie told the jury he had taken two glasses of rye and mix before picking the girls up, then another rye and mix at the house before leaving for the corporals' club of the Queen's Own Rifles, at Work Point. He said he ate a meat pie at the house before leaving. He testified under the protection of the B.C. and Canada evidence acts.

SLIGHT BUMP

Cpl. Roy Chelsson, a passenger in the car at the time of the accident, said he felt a slight bump and Ogilvie lost control of the car for a minute. "The car went left, right, then left again," he said. He said he saw oncoming headlights. "I braced myself."

Driver of the other car Mikolos Kovats, is the last witness. He will appear Tuesday when Mr. St. Jorre will deliver his charge and the jury will consider a verdict.

Home Sweet CRASH

"You think you've got nasty neighbors — you should have been here yesterday!" Photographer William Boucher noted patient face on billboard next to building in 700 block Johnson, being knocked down to make parking lot.

Perjury Hearing Resumes Monday

A Port Alberni man was remanded to Monday in central magistrate's court for committal trial on a charge of perjury, when a two-day preliminary hearing ended Thursday. Magistrate William Ostler agreed to the remand at the request of counsel Jack Gatehouse, who is defending Frank Hulbert, 40, on the charge arising from testimony Hulbert gave in the preliminary hearing of William Mitchell on a charge of murder.

At the 1943 preliminary hearing, Hulbert testified that Mitchell had told him he had struck Molly Justice, 15, with a rock and stabbed her with a knife at Saanich. In the first day of the hearing, Wednesday, Mr. Justice J. M. Coady, a retired member of the B.C. Appeal Court and the trial judge in 1943, read notes from his bench book, since there was no transcript of the trial available.

Saanich Told

Sketches in January For Senior Centre

Sketch plans for the Saanich senior citizens' centre on Hampton Road will be ready the first week in January, architect John Di Castri told the special projects committee Thursday. Chairman Edith Gunning told the committee that two lots had been acquired by the municipality next to property previously purchased. Coun. William Campbell moved that a recommendation be made to council to call for tenders to demolish an old house standing on the two lots.

Committee discussed an alternate scheme for activity rooms submitted by Mr. Di Castri, which called for partitions and provisions for folding doors.

LARGE ROOM

It was decided to eliminate the partitions and make the activity area one large room. The committee had previously planned for four smaller rooms.

Mrs. Catherine Horne, executive director of Victoria Silver Threads, attended the meeting and told the committee that several activities could be carried on in one large room without interfering with one another.

Recommendations were passed to ask the engineering department to have test holes drilled on the site to determine presence and extent of subsurface rock.

Teen Dance

Two teen-bands will play tonight at a benefit dance in aid of the Victoria Youth Council. City of Drawers and the Fast Flying Vespertine will perform at White Eagle Hall, 90 Dock Street, at 8 p.m.

Search, Rescue Work

Hovercraft on Guard

The Canadian Coast Guard confirmed Thursday in Victoria it has purchased a British-built hovercraft for search and rescue work in B.C. waters. The $490,000 vessel will be based at Vancouver International Airport.

The federal transport department began seriously considering the purchase after three persons were killed Jan. 2, 1966, when an aircraft plunged off the end of a Vancouver airport runway into marshy water, said Victoria district marine agent Larry Slaght.

Mr. Slaght said the crash occurred in water too shallow for boats but too deep for land vehicles. The hovercraft is capable of operating under such conditions, he said.

It will work in the Gulf of Georgia area mainly, and "only sometimes" will be brought to Victoria, he added.

Delivery is not expected until after April 1 of next year, he said.

Sidney

On, Off Recount Claimed

An unsuccessful candidate for Sidney council in the recent election said Thursday that he was promised a recount, and was later refused it.

Herbert Perry, who was only four votes behind Stanley Dear and 14 behind Leonard Wadhams in the aldermanic race, said he asked for a recount on Sunday, the day following the election.

MAYOR'S ASSURANCE

He said he was assured by re-elected Mayor Arthur Freeman and returning officer A. M. Ferner that he would be granted a recount on Tuesday.

He said he was told Tuesday that there would not be much point in a recount, since the vote wouldn't be changed.

LAW NOTE

Mr. Perry said he was told the mayor and the returning officer had decided to stick by Section 109 of the Municipal Act, which provides for the recount. "In case it is made to appear, on the affidavit of a credible witness, to a judge of the County Court at any time within five days after the holding of the poll that the returning officer or a presiding officer at an election in the municipality has, in counting the votes, incorrectly counted the number of votes cast or unlawfully accepted or rejected any ballot papers . . ."

Mr. Perry, who was not present at the count, is looking for someone able to sign an affidavit to win him a recount.

Strangers Can Help Patients

A stranger can bring a touch of Christmas to a forgotten mental patient somewhere in a B.C. hospital.

Only the annual gift campaign organized by the Canadian Mental Health Association breaks the loneliness for some of the province's 5,500 people in hospital with emotional problems.

This year the Greater Victoria project of the CMHA is centred at Metropolitan United Church, 1411 Quadra. Chairman of the campaign is Mary Rowley, supervisor of the CMHA White Cross Centre at 2316 Lee Avenue.

DONATION BOXES

The committee has set up red donation boxes where gifts may be left at Eaton's, Woolco, Merry Mart, McCall-Davey Drugs and The Bay stores, and Gordon Head and First United Churches.

Last year more than 500 gifts were shipped to Riverview Hospital, and 192 former patients now in the community were remembered.

Not Long To Wait

Small sample of Santa's wares brought friendly smile from four-year-old Michael Taram of Courtenay in city store Thursday. He expects to see Santa again in 10 days time. —(Jim Ryan)

Teachers Resume Pay Talks

An arbitration board working out a 1968 contract between the Greater Victoria school board and its 1,200 teachers convened Thursday morning and was still deliberating near midnight.

The three-man board has Victoria lawyer Gerald J. Sullivan as its chairman, lawyer Kenneth Murphy of Victoria as school board nominee, and UBC economist Dr. Peter Pearce sitting for the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association.

The board offered a five per cent raise and the teachers were asking seven per cent when negotiations broke off in November.

Cemetery Ban

Dog Champion Won't Give In

Ald. Robert Baird lost another round Thursday in his Ross Bay Cemetery dog ban battle.

But there's one more round to go.

The alderman has been battling a proposal to ban dogs from Ross Bay Cemetery, whether on leash or not, since it was first raised in committee.

At Thursday's meeting of city council, the plan had reached the bylaw stage and dog-lover Baird was still in there fighting.

OWNER CONTROL

"I cannot take this matter lightly," the alderman said. "I have made a complete investigation and I have found that there has been only one complaint in five years. Is it fair to ban dogs on the basis of one complaint?"

"It is true that dogs have a natural function and I believe it is this which is complained of, but this is a matter of control on the part of the owner," the alderman added.

However, the motion to defer the first readings of the bylaw was defeated.

Burned Youth Still 'Poor'

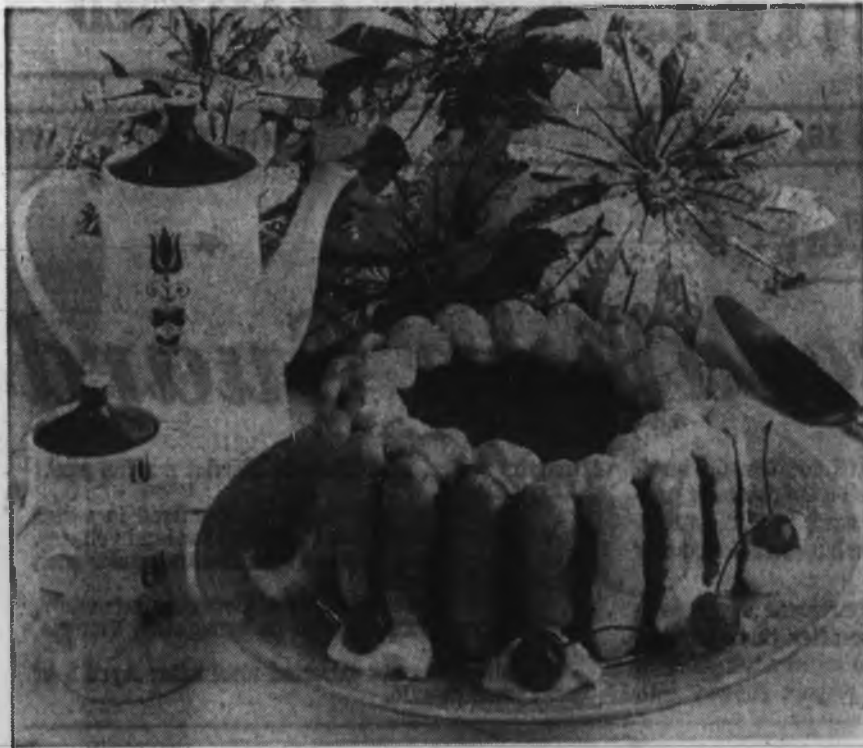

David Doyle, 15, of 2780 Mainstream, was reported still in poor condition Thursday night at St. Joseph's Hospital, with second-degree burns to most of his body.

The boy was burned Monday when a can of gasoline exploded at his Langford home.

Silvery Poinsettias Lovely Background

It is easier for the hostess when giving a buffet dinner, if the dessert service is arranged on a separate table. The table should be ready, with a beautiful centerpiece, so that after the main course has been enjoyed, the party dessert and coffee can be quickly and easily placed where guests may help themselves.

The beautiful red and silver poinsettias pictured form a perfect centerpiece for a table for serving the luscious Chocolate Refrigerator Cake pictured. They're made from aluminum foil backed with red contact paper... a new combination that is easy to do and which adds color and gaiety to the sparkle of foil.

You will need:
12 inch wide aluminum foil
Red and green contact paper
Wire or pipe cleaners
1 inch styrofoam balls

Remove backing from contact paper and place foil shiny side up against the adhesive. Stick them together, gently smoothing to remove air bubbles. From the red sheet cut petals in several shapes and sizes, free-hand. From the green sheet, cut leaves in assorted sizes, free-hand. (Leaves are same shape as petals.) Cut thin strips of the red and green contact paper to make centre veins and apply to the foil sides of both petals and leaves. Mark side veins with blunt pencil.

For centre of poinsettia, cut small styrofoam ball in half, then cover half with foil. For a stem, form small hook in one end of pipe cleaner, then force it through the styrofoam ball, pulling it through and anchoring the hook on flat side. Crumble small bits of foil and top each with a bit of red contact paper. Attach to flat side of centre with common pin.

Assemble flower by pinning petals around centre, then covering stem with narrow band of foil and attaching leaves. This forms a lovely silver and red poinsettia with stem and green and silver leaves. Make several and combine them for a beautiful holiday centerpiece.

SPRING FORM PAN

Trace a circle the desired size on lightweight cardboard. (Shirley cardboards are fine.) Spring form pans usually come in 6, 8 and 10 inch diameters. Cover the circle with foil, securing it on the bottom with tape. Multiply the diameter by 4 and tear off a length of heavy duty foil to correspond. Fold this foil in half lengthwise and in half again to make a band 4 1/2 inches wide. Cut short 1/4-inch snips on one long side at 1-inch intervals. Place the foil-covered circle on a can or other object to elevate it. Fold the foil band around it, slipped ends flat against the bottom of the circle. Attach these with tape. Let the band overlap and secure it with tape. Stand upright and fill with food. Place on a shallow pan if the foil pan contains food which is to be baked.

CHOCOLATE REFRIGERATOR CAKE (8-10 servings)

3 squares unsweetened chocolate; 6 tablespoons granulated sugar; 3 tablespoons milk; 3 eggs, separated; 1 teaspoon vanilla; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 1/2 cup unsalted butter; 1/2 cup confectioners' sugar; 1 dozen ladyfingers; 1/2 cup brandy and 1/2 cup water, mixed; 1/2 cup whipped cream, Pistachio nuts, cherries; 6" spring form pan.

Melt the chocolate with sugar and milk in top of double boiler. Add the beaten egg yolks; cook, stirring, until smooth and thick. Cool, add the vanilla and salt. Cream the butter and 1/2 cup of confectioners' sugar and fold into the chocolate mixture. Fold in the egg whites beaten with the remaining confectioners' sugar. Sprinkle the ladyfingers with brandy mixture and arrange them in the bottom and around the sides of the pan. You will have to break off small pieces of the ladyfingers in order to have them the right size. Spoon in a layer of the chocolate mixture, add the broken lady fingers and cover with remaining chocolate mixture. Top with more lady fingers. Cover with foil and chill in the refrigerator overnight. To serve, remove sides and place on serving plate. Garnish with whipped cream, cherries and/or pistachio nuts.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Please warn mothers that outward appearances mean nothing. Tell them to keep their eyes on their daughters and not to take anything for granted. Just because a girl seems withdrawn doesn't mean she's leading a quiet life.

My friend who has two daughters learned this lesson the hard way. Her 20-year-old Linda was beautiful, well-built and she attracted boys like crazy, starting at age 13. The mother felt the need to keep close tabs on this girl — and she did. They had frequent heart-to-heart talks and the lines of communication were always open. After every date the girl sat on her mother's bed and told her what the evening had been like.

Daughter Number Two (Marie was 18 months younger — not at all pretty. She was noticeably overweight and had a bad complexion. This girl spent most of her time in her room with her nose in a book. The mother never concerned herself about Marie's morals because she seldom had a date and expressed very little interest in boys.

In September Linda was married to a fine young law student. She wore a white gown and I'll bet she deserved it. Last week Marie wore a white gown also — but it was a hospital gown. She gave birth to a 3-pound baby boy. (No husband in sight and not a clue as to who the father might be.)

The mother nearly had a nervous breakdown. She repeated over and over, "I never dreamed such a thing would happen to her — of all people!"

I'm sure you got the message, Ann. Will you please get it across to the mothers? Thank you. — JUST AN OBSERVER

Dear Just: Your letter got the message across very well. But here's a recap.

The not-so-pretty, not-so-popular girl is infinitely more vulnerable than the charmer with good looks and personality. An ugly duckling, in her eagerness to be loved, can be easy prey for the smooth operator who makes her believe that if she gives in he will love her. She also may feel that since she has less to offer she must be excessively generous with her physical favors. Are you tuned in, mothers? I hope so.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is a jerk. All his life he has done people favors. He repairs their electric appliances, drives them wherever they want to go, lends them money, signs for you Lady. Get off his back. You say he hasn't listened to you in 22 years so why not take the hint?

If your husband charged for his favors he'd have the pleasure of giving — and this, my friend, can be a lot more rewarding than a buck here and a buck there.

Confidential to Proof In The Pudding: I'm convinced. Statistics can be arranged so that they will support almost anything — especially the statistician.

He thinks you are a very smart woman. Will you please give him some of your common sense, down-to-earth advice? — IGNORED.

Dear Ignored: The advice is now! by G.L.

Gardin in his usual far out (and usually ahead) manner likes the undecided hem! Important now that the hemline is the important fashion point. The best part is it is so easy to do with loving hands at home! Just lay the dress flat and measure one side mini length then from that point take a straight line down to the other side just below the knee length. It is wild, but new and fun which best describes all fashion today. Pierre Gardin '67.

Wed at Christ Church

Mr. and Mrs. Hulsey To Reside in Idaho

Following their wedding in Christ Church Cathedral Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Scott Hulsey left on a honeymoon trip along the Oregon coast before travelling to make their new home in Lewiston, Idaho.

The bride, the former Marlene Jane White, wore a floor-length gown of peau de soie, topped with a coat of white cut velvet. The coat was styled with wrist-length sleeves and featured a train sweeping back from the shirred waistline. A pearl and crown headpiece held her tiered illusion veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses, centred with a white bow. As jewelry she wore an heirloom opal and diamond ring and a pearl necklace, gift of the groom.

White flowers decorated the church when Canon C. Hilary Butler heard vows under the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. Arthur White, 1409-350 Douglas Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Hulsey of Oroville, Wash. Dr. White gave his daughter in marriage.

The boys' choir sang as the wedding party entered the church. Miss Claire Wiley, soloist, sang "Ave Marie" and the choir sang "A Wedding Prayer" during the signing of the register.

Mrs. Irving Trembley, Oliver, was matron of honor, Miss Dianne Johnson, Vancouver, was bridesmaid, and Mrs. Glen Whitton, bridesmetron. They wore matching gowns of blue velvet with tatters of garnet roses and feathered chrysanthemums in their hair. They carried open-lace fans decorated with red sweetheart roses.

John Odello, Carmel, Calif. acted as best man. Ronald Barillaro, North Surrey and James Arzen, Lewiston, Idaho ushered the guests.

At the reception following in the Imperial Inn, a wedding cake topped with red sweetheart roses was cut. Dr. A. O. Rubelsch, Vancouver, proposed the toast to the bride and Dr. J. N. Edmison acted as master of ceremonies. Miss Francis Schmidt was in charge of the guest book.

Heirloom Locket Fulfils Something Old Tradition

An heirloom diamond locket in heart design fulfilled the "something old" tradition for Lynne Mary Simpson when she became the bride of Mr. Donald Craigdallie in St. Mark's Anglican Church.

Canon R. Willis officiated at the recent ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Simpson, 107 West Burnside Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Craigdallie, 3718 Harriet Road.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a floor-length gown of silk shantung in a-line style and featured a bateau neckline and sleeves inset with French lace. An inverted panel swept back en train from the back neckline complementing the bride's mantilla veil edged in French lace. Pale yellow roses and white carnations were in her bouquet. Miss Judy Warren was maid of honor and bridesmaids were the Misses Ann Craigdallie, groom's sister, and Patricia Wellburn. They were in street-length, tent style gowns of orange shantung self-fabric. Bows held their short veils and they wore gold floral brooches, gifts of the bride. They carried bouquets of white carnations edged with gold leaves.

Mr. Robert E. Craigdallie was best man for his brother and Mr. Gordon Richards and Mr. Ross Rockett ushered the guests.

Dr. F. H. Sanders proposed the toast to the bride at the reception which followed in the Olde England Inn.

For travelling on honeymoon to Portland, Ore., the new Mrs. Craigdallie chose a mustard Irish tweed suit with navy, mustard and green turban, and navy accessories.

The newlyweds now are residing in the Regency Apartments.

Brother Rings Church Bells

At a ceremony performed recently by Rev. Peter Iles in St. John's Anglican Church, Colwood, Miss Leslie Dennis Darley was united in marriage with Mr. Gary Robert Moseley.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Darley, 603 Kildew Road, was given in marriage by her father.

The fair-haired bride was a picture in her floor-length gown fashioned with Chantilly lace bodice featuring a scooped neckline and fly-point sleeves. The straight skirt of altar crepe had an adjustable full sweeping train of Chantilly lace. Her four-tiered veil of illusion was edged with the same lace and held in place by tiny hand-rolled roses. Yellow rosebuds were in her bouquet.

Mrs. T. Wilson was matron of honor and the Misses Julia Kitley and Doreen Moseley, alister of the groom, were bridesmaids. They wore floor-length gowns of royal blue brocade with matching headdresses and carried bouquets of blue and white carnations.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Moseley, 533 View Royal Avenue, had his brother, Mr. Peter Moseley as best man.

Mr. Paul Reynolds and Mr. Mark Hendrickson were ushers. The bride's young brother, Master Mark Darley rang the church bells as the bridal party left the church.

The reception was held in the Strawberry Vale hall where Mr. Ted Ralph proposed the bridal toast.

Leaving for a honeymoon to the southern States, the bride wore a camel hair suit, multi-colored hat, brown alligator accessories and corsage of yellow rosebuds.

Medical Link Carved

LONDON (CP) An Eskimo sculpture which made the long journey from the shores of Hudson Bay to a West London teaching hospital was unveiled Thursday by Countess Alexander of Tunis as a permanent memento of Canada's links with a leading British medical institution.

The 720-pound sculpture, representing an Eskimo woman fishing through the ice, took the artist, Lucienne of Port Harrison, nine months to carve with whalebone from a solid block of soapstone.

It was presented to the Royal Postgraduate Medical School at Hammersmith Hospital by a group of benefactors who launched the nation-wide Canadian appeal for the school's new wing in 1958 under the patronage of Earl Alexander, school president.

The campaign raised $300,000, largest contribution after Britain's to the multi-nation fund which built the school's Commonwealth building. The school has pioneered many medical advances.

Jail for Weekends?

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO — RCMP Staff Sergeant Gib Perry told a public safety meeting Thursday night that a program for jailing traffic offenders just for weekends may be incorporated on Vancouver Island.

"This program is in the thinking stages. If you can make the driver suffer and still allow him to maintain his family and keep his job, we're reaching our goal," Sergeant Perry told 50 people in the Credit Union building.

His comments followed Nanaimo Crown prosecutor Alan Horne's outline of a South African program of weekend jail for offenders, covering 15 to 30 consecutive weekends.

"It works," he said. Nanaimo NDP MLA Dave Stupich said, "Dave Barrett, NDP MLA for Coquitlam, has proposed this for the past few years."

"Mr. Barrett has also included provision for jail in the evenings, and making the convicted person pay for the cost of being kept in jail."

Panelists attending the meeting agreed with guest speaker Alan Rositter, traffic superintendent of Vancouver city police, who said "We've got to make drinking-driving a plague among us."

He said the effects of drinking-driving are as bad as those of marijuana and LSD.

He said "The leaders in our society must be trained before we can expect the general public to be trained."

Superintendent Rositter suggested new drivers start training at 16. "Mass media programs for attracting the attention of the general public must be changed because they are ineffective."

"Public education is the key," he said.

Superintendent Rositter also explained that police image has changed drastically over the past years.

Letter to Council

Unions Under Fire For 'Selfish Greed'

When will labor union members minds come with the brain to lead them beyond their "selfish greed for increased wages and shorter hours?" a Victoria manufacturer asked city council Thursday.

And what, asked J. W. Lord,

Lifelong Resident Dies at 86

Lifelong lower-Vancouver Island resident, Mrs. Sarah Ann Queen White, died Wednesday in Victoria at the age of 86.

She was born in East Sooke and lived all her life at her home, 1336 Johnson Street.

She is survived by her husband, Bert, a musician and entertainer; her brother, Tom Cartwright; and nieces and nephews; all of Victoria.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Monday, at Sands Funeral Home with Rev. Norman Archer officiating.

Wong Rites Monday

Funeral services will be held Monday for Hong Wong, a senior Victoria Chinese resident who came here 71 years ago. He died Wednesday at 85.

He had moved to Victoria from China when 14, and was proprietor of Victoria Barber Shop for 50 years.

He is survived by his wife, Joy, at home; sons and daughters, Mrs. Evelyn Chan, Gilbert Wong both of Victoria, Wesley Wong, Alfred Wong, and Mrs. Harry (Evelyn) Lang, all of Vancouver, Mrs. Thomas Ko, of Toronto; 18 grandchildren; and six great-grandchildren.

Services will be held at 2:30 p.m. Monday in Sands Funeral Chapel with Rev. C. Y. Chow officiating. Burial will be at Royal Oak Burial Park.

president and general manager of Builders Sash and Door Ltd., was Victoria's council doing to bring industry to the city.

"I would suggest that you make tax concessions, water concessions or whatever concessions are necessary to attract industry. Make more industrial land available at reasonable prices without rigid controls on pollution and building code requirements that are impossible to live with," Mr. Lord said in his letter to the mayor and council.

TWO ANSWERS

The long, single-spaced, two-page letter went on to say that labor costs, shorter hours and the lack of opportunity for manufacturing were pricing Victoria out of the market. Ald. Robert Baird had one answer, and Ald. Ian Stewart another.

The loss of VMD shipyard was a mortal wound to the city, Ald. Baird said, and he thought one remedy to a "sad situation" would be to appoint an industrial commissioner.

William Hoosen, assistant to the city manager, would be a good man for the job, he added.

TALK OUT PLANS

Ald. Stewart's suggestion was that labor, management and civic officials get together and try to talk out some plans and ideas for Victoria's economic future.

"I have expressed my view in this matter and have found a good deal of interest in a conference. One couldn't promise solutions, but if it did nothing else but establish a favorable climate for discussion, it would be of value," the alderman said.

Two Hurt In Crash

William Kempster, 17, 730 Greenlea Drive, and Wendy Tipper, 16, of 5178 Rambler, were taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital with superficial facial injuries after the car driven by Kempster hit a tree at Lochside and Jersey. Search police checked the car and found the steering mechanism was tight, and apparently jammed.

Pearson Plans Retirement

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — A zealous Prime Minister Pearson, announced cheerfully Thursday he will retire as prime minister and Liberal chieftain as soon as his party chooses a successor at a leadership convention, probably in April.

He told a news conference he will remain MP for Algoma East for the life of this Parliament—elected in 1965—but will not be a candidate at the next election.

He will not publicly favor any candidate as his successor.

The 70-year-old Mr. Pearson said: "I will indicate in no way any preference for a successor and I will have no part in this aspect of party activities."

WRITING PLANS

He said he will do a lot of writing after he and his wife retire "to our little rose-covered cottage in Rockcliffe."

They bought a house in the swank suburban community several months ago. John Diefenbaker, former Conservative prime minister defeated in September in a bid for re-election as his party's leader, also lives there.

DAILY WALKS

Mr. Pearson suggested that he and his old antagonist might meet on their daily walks in Rockcliffe and discuss how their respective memoirs were coming along.

His retirement announcement was a cherished Christmas present for Mrs. Pearson.

She has long been urging her husband to retire—and said so publicly more than once.

CENTENNIAL PRESSURE

Mr. Pearson said he had intended right along to announce his retirement this year. He might have departed in the spring or summer but the "pleasant" pressure of Centennial Year engagements had persuaded him to stay on.

Informants said the key to his retirement plans was the federal-provincial constitutional conference opening here Feb. 5.

BIG QUESTION

The crucial question was: Would retirement announced now weaken his position at the conference? He decided it would not and Mr. Pearson stated this at his hastily-summoned, 18-minute press conference at the National Press Building.

Senator John Nichol of Vancouver, president of the Liberal Federation of Canada, sat beside Mr. Pearson during the press conference.

SUNDAY MEETING

The 43-year-old Senator said the federation executive will meet here Sunday and a time and place for a leadership convention will be announced Monday.

Mr. Pearson and Senator Nichol indicated the convention will be held here during Parliament's Easter recess. Good Friday falls on April 12.

CONTINUE WORK

Mr. Pearson made it plain he expects leadership candidates within his cabinet to carry on their government work in the Commons and in their Ottawa offices.

There are at least seven—and probably more—cabinet ministers who now plan to run for the leadership which, barring a Liberal defeat in the Commons before the convention, would carry with it the prime ministership.

SEVEN HOPEFULS

The seven are External Affairs Minister Martin, 64, Finance Minister Sharp, 56, Transport Minister Hellyer, 44, Health Minister MacEachen, 46, Registrar-General Turner, 38, Trade Minister Winter, 57, and Agriculture Minister Greene, 47. Others who may well enter the race are Justice Minister Trudeau, 46, Manpower Minister Marchand, 49, Revenue Minister Benson, 44, and Eric Kierans, 53, president of the Quebec Liberal Federation.

ACTIVE TIME

Mr. Pearson said he expects to be active in government affairs for the next three or four months, especially in the field of constitutional questions.

He said progress has been made in constitutional reform and he hopes this progress will continue to strengthen national unity and other aspects of Canadian life.

Mr. Pearson read out his Dec. 14 letter to Senator Nichol.

OTTAWA SURPRISE

He said he will hand over the leadership to his successor within a few days of the convention.

His announcement caught Ottawa unawares although his resignation had been widely rumored for a year or more. Only last month he disclaimed retirement plans.

He said he does not have the slightest misgivings that cabinet ministers who may be seeking his mantle will stay in the capital as ministers and MPs to carry on the government's work.

HIGH POINTS

Asked to name the high and low points of his career, Mr. Pearson said he might call another press conference just to reminisce.

He did recall that his first motion as Liberal leader in the Commons—in January, 1958—was not the high spot of his career.

"I had no place to go but up," he said.

RESIGNATION CALL

He was referring to his motion calling on Mr. Diefenbaker to resign and hand back government reins to the Liberals without an election.

He said with a grin that he and Mr. Diefenbaker might be members of the same parliamentary committees.

Mr. Pearson said he will not feel inhibited about making any cabinet changes or appointments while he is still prime minister.

'Canada Faces Change'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier of British Columbia said Thursday Prime Minister Pearson's resignation means the country is entering a new political phase when new blood leading the country's two major political parties.

"I hope that after this, after a new leader is appointed, the country can settle down to some strong, definite federal policies," said Mr. Bennett, who heads B.C.'s Social Credit government.

Mr. Bennett said he was glad Mr. Pearson had resigned without "trying to foist any person to succeed him."

"It seems to me natural he should have done it that way; he has so many old colleagues who aspire to the job."

'Much Admiration'

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson Thursday praised Prime Minister Pearson as a Canadian "of great quality."

He told a news conference before a cabinet meeting he has "much admiration and much sympathy" for Mr. Pearson, who announced his resignation as Liberal leader.

'Great Leader'

FREDERICTON (CP) — Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick said Thursday "it was a matter of regret to me" and all other Liberals to learn of the resignation of Prime Minister Pearson.

"He has been a great and effective leader of the Liberal party," Mr. Robichaud said in a statement. "More important, he has used his position of leadership to give magnificent service to the Canadian people."

It takes an uncommonly good whisky to make a man switch his brand. 1840 Reserve is an uncommonly good whisky. New in name only, 1840 Reserve is a happy blend of two perfectly aged whiskies—a five year old and a twelve year old. The result is an exceptionally light taste. Light but richly rewarding. Try 1840 Reserve. Sip it slowly. Roll it on your tongue. The odds are you'll agree: now 1840 Reserve is magnificent.

REX MORGANHAND LOIS*KERRY DRAKE*ARCHIE*LIL ABNER*JUDGE PARKER*BLONDIE*RIP KIRBY*POGO*MARY WORTH*Garden Notes

By M. V. CHESNUT

Last year, during the Christmas season, I described what to me would be an ideal gift for a keen gardener—a super-dooper greenhouse with thermostat-controlled electric heating, twin-glass insulation and automatic irrigation and ventilation. Such a superb Christmas present is, of course, far beyond the means of us wage slaves, and I thought it might be interesting today to explore some of the cheaper alternatives.

There are, of course, some inexpensive greenhouses made of light wooden frames and thin sheet plastic film, but these are inexpensive only in that cost. Heat losses are high through the thin plastic and it may cost a small fortune to maintain satisfactory growing temperatures during cold weather.

Facilities for ventilation are seldom satisfactory, and the light plastic covering is not very long-lasting, requiring renewal every few years. To anyone contemplating the purchase of a first greenhouse, I would say—do it right or don't do it at all.

It seems to me that a really good coldframe equipped with an electric soil-heating cable is of more practical value than any of the flimsy, cat-in-the-hat type of greenhouse.

I understand that plans for a coldframe made from stout rot-proofed lumber, with glass "lights," are available from some of the larger lumber and building supply firms, and some firms even supply pre-sawn knock-down frames.

Soil-heating cables are not at all expensive, ranging from $3.75 to $12.95, depending on the size of the frame to be heated and whether plastic-covered or the more costly lead-covered cable is used. Thermometers are available too, to turn the power off and on, thereby maintaining a constant soil temperature within the frame. The only real difficulty is extending electric power from the house to the site of the frame.

A worthwhile alternative to both greenhouse and coldframe is to build a garden room or even a garden bench in the basement, using fluorescent lights instead of natural daylight. This idea has many advantages; for one thing, heating costs are nil, for your basement is already heated, and probably to approximately the correct temperature for your plants. Power consumption is low with fluorescent lights.

Canadian Westinghouse and the Sylvan people both manufacture fluorescent tubes especially designed to provide light for growing plants; these give off a pale pink light containing the correct rays of the spectrum for optimum plant growth. Ordinary commercial tubes are almost as good, though, and somewhat less expensive. The tubes may be mounted in regular fluorescent fixtures and suspended over the plant benches, or fixtures can be extemporized. I know of one highly successful basement garden room equipped with second-hand fixtures purchased very reasonably from a house-wrecking firm.

Whatever fixtures are used, they should have good reflectors to throw all the light down on the plants, and it should be possible to raise or lower the lights to accommodate the varying heights of plants.

For the unhandyman who can't knock together a plant bench—like me—there are readymade plant stands equipped with fluorescent lighting; just plug it in and start growing things.

In a catalogue before me as I write, there is a three-deck plant stand called the Sunlighter, with six trays for plants and three fluorescent fixtures. It stands 55 inches tall, 24 inches wide and 27 inches from back to front, listed at $97.50 complete with six Gro-Lux tubes.

The same catalogue lists a small single-tray stand with one two-tube fluorescent fixture and automatic wick watering for $24.95 complete. This one is not free-standing but would have to sit on a table or bench.

A useful accessory is an automatic clock switch to turn the light off and on at selected times, giving your plants their power 14 to 16 hours of light daily. A heavy-duty time switch suitable for this purpose would cost $12.95.

ERMA BOMBECK and Operation GarageFirst Find the Opening

I guess just about everyone knows that Ralph Nader did an expose on our garage last year. Naturally, it didn't get the publicity that the car industry did, nor did it have the appeal of his slaughterhouse findings, but it made quite an impression on me.

The gist of his report was that if a two-year-old child toddled down the centre of our garage from the front door, he would be attacked and killed by a garden rake, a chain saw, a portable heater, a buffalo gun, a pair of cars and a set of snow tires before he reached the freezer.

Or he put it bluntly, "The kid would never reach the age of three."

He further contended that there was something wrong with the thinking of a family who would make slip-covers for a car before they would consider clearing out a space in the garage for it.

This then was our goal. This year, the car would be returned to its rightful place in the garage.

The first thing we did was to find the opening where the car was supposed to enter. This was simply a matter of getting down the original blueprints and measuring over several feet from the kitchen.

To our surprise, we discovered the garage faced the front of the house. We had all rather imagined it faced the side yard and had never opened it, figuring someone had bricked it in for a good reason.

Our first attempt to garage the car was rather dramatic. My husband, in a white jump suit and a crash helmet waved to the crowd of well-wishers who had lined the driveway before gunning the car forward to the black opening.

He hit a lawn mower, a broken bar stool, a trunk filled with magazines, a minnow bucket, a consumptive jack-o-lantern and a chicken. (Which surprised us, as we are not zoned for chickens.)

"You're going to have to back up!" I shouted.

"Why? Can't you get the freezer door open?"

"No! And my legs are in there," I yelled.

"Is that better?" he asked, as the aerial became entangled in a sled hung from the ceiling.

"Fine," I said, swinging myself up onto the hood of the car and crawling over the roof. "I'm going to tell the crowd the show is over and they can go home now."

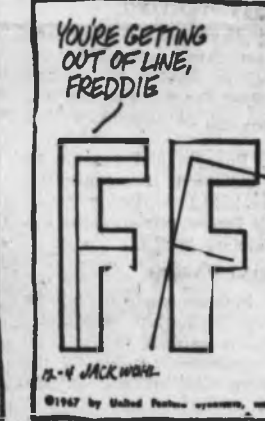

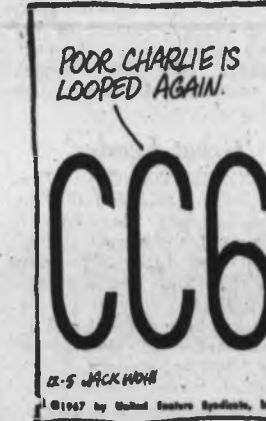

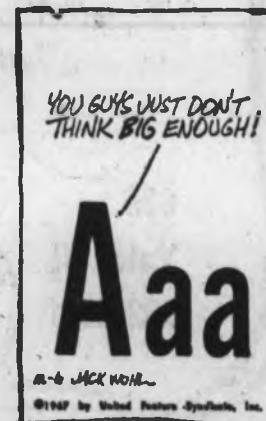

"Wait a minute," he said. "I can't get the car door open. I just felt through the no-draft and there's a ladder blocking the door. On the other side, I can't open it enough to squeeze through."

"We could back out the car and clean the garage," I suggested.

"That's the coward's way," he said, slumping down over the steering wheel. "I'll think of something."

SYDNEY HARRIS

Whenever I hear an American say, "Well, my parents (or grandparents) came over to this country without a penny, lived in the slums, and worked themselves up out of it—so why can't Negroes do the same?" I am tempted to observe that "false analogy is one of the most treacherous confounders of the human mind."

Let me illustrate concretely what is meant by "false analogy." In his splendid book, Personal Knowledge, Michael Polanyi tells of taking a Hindu to tea in New York. When his tea arrived, the Hindu opened the tea bag and poured the loose tea into his cup.

Polanyi gently explained that he didn't have to do that—the bag was porous and the tea would seep through it into the water. The Hindu politely thanked him, and then promptly dropped a lump of sugar—still wrapped in paper—into his cup of tea.

The Hindu was making a justifiable, but utterly false, analogy: if the tea soaks through its container, then the sugar soaks through its container. But the tea bag was designed to let the tea out, and the sugar-wrapper was designed to keep the sugar in. To the ignorant or thoughtless, however, paper is paper, and people are people, and it is far easier to lump them than to like or understand them.

The fact that other ethnic groups worked their way out of the slums would be relevant to the Negro situation only if other factors were similar; but they were not, as a moment's honest reflection would tell us.

The ethnic groups who made it in America had a religious background that was deeply rooted in the Old World and effectively transplanted.

They had a cohesive family pattern, a tradition of the father taking care of the family, and the mother working in the home.

They had the opportunity to live where they could afford it, go to school freely with children of other classes and backgrounds, and make their way in business or the professions as far as their talent would allow.

The Negro was kidnapped from his homeland, enslaved, made to do the most menial work, denied an education, humiliated and despised, his family broken up and sold to different slave owners, his old religious ties obliterated, and a passive pie-in-the-sky Christianity substituted for it. His incentive was steadily and remorselessly extinguished and his individualism was ground into a stereotype.

Given these long-term handicaps, how do you imagine your parents or grandparents would have fared in the New World, Mr. Honky?

TV TALK

By BRUCE LOWTHER

The story of rock 'n' roll guitarist Jeff Scarborough, 20, an American who spent four months in South Vietnam with a night club quartet, will never appear on television—but it should. Returning home, he makes these fascinating observations:

There was a riot in one club because the manager didn't want to allow a Negro in the quartet. The Negro was one of many GIs making extra money by playing in clubs. Some club managers get a 10-per-cent kickback from agents for booking their talent.

Most interesting of all, Scarborough says some female entertainers "often are expected to associate" with club managers, and his one-month visa magically became four—when he paid $800 a month. I wonder.

Women In Majority

A bureau official said urban living and jobs had apparently attracted young women from farms and small communities.

MINE MEN

Resource and mining communities have a high proportion of unmarried men. For every 100 women there are 122 men in Prince Rupert, 111 in Balfour, Ontario, and 111 in Kapuskasing, Ont.

Ottawa and Quebec City are "secretary" towns, with respective male-to-female ratios of 92 to 100 and 85 to 100.

Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver have only 98 men per 100 women, Winnipeg 83, Halifax 86, and Calgary and Edmonton 99.

Ouimet Quits Hot Seat with Pride

OTTAWA (CP) — Joseph Ouimet, president of the CBC, today gave up what has been described as the second hottest seat in Canada.

He ends a 33-year career with the publicly-owned corporation with a feeling of deep personal satisfaction. "There is no other television organization in the world that produces the volume of television programming that we do in two languages," the 59-year-old electrical engineer said.

Canada's small population is scattered over a huge geographical area and the complication of a national system having to operate both in English and French languages.

Despite these difficulties, Mr. Ouimet said, the CBC has produced programs of generally high quality that can hold their own against those of any other country and has produced them in sufficient volume to constitute a true national service.

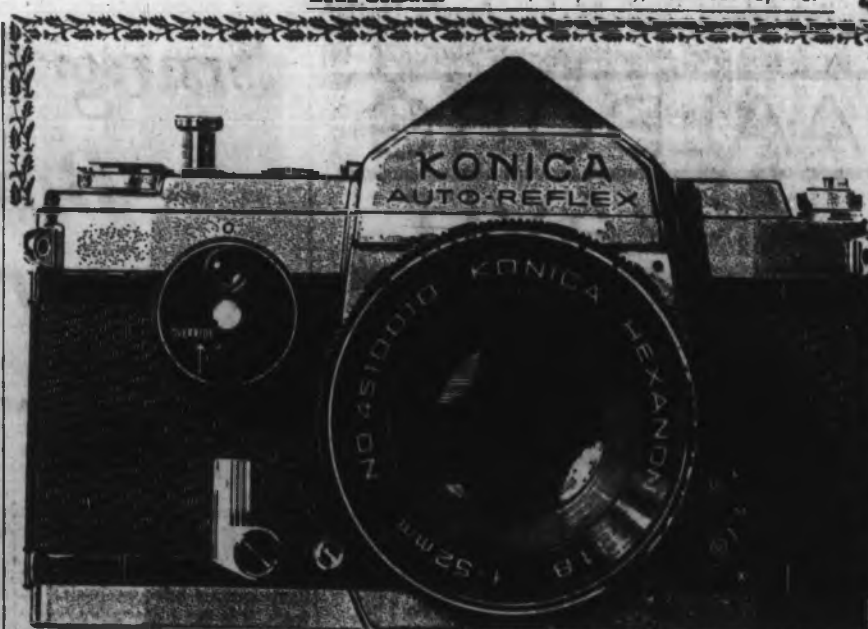

Mr. Ouimet has been chief of floor of the CBC for almost 15 years, the era in which the corporation moved into TV. He is the virtual father of Canadian TV. He organized CBC television, launched it and watched it chalk up the fastest growth of any TV system in the world.

Smog Hazard —But Not Cancer Cause

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Something about urban life makes death from lung cancer more common in the city than the country, but it's not smog, a team of state health scientists reports.

The conclusion was based on results of a nine-year study of almost 70,000 Californians.

"Although smog is known to have serious adverse health effects, it is not a causative factor in lung cancer," state Health Director Leslie Breslow told a news conference Wednesday.

Breslow reported the results of a study launched in 1958 to find out whether California's smog may be a factor in the higher rate of lung cancer deaths in cities. Although Los Angeles has the state's worst smog, the lung cancer death rate reported in the study was lower there than in either San Diego or San Francisco.

Breslow teamed with Dr. John E. Dunn and Philip Buell to analyse the cases of 69,868 men. The researchers concentrated on those who had lived in the state for 15 to 20 years—the period in which smog became a major problem in Los Angeles and then in other metropolitan areas.

"We would expect an influence on lung cancer to show up about this time," Breslow said. But there was none.

Studies are continuing to find out why city residents are more likely to get lung cancer than their rural counterparts.

Breslow's study showed the lung cancer death rate in Los Angeles County was 96.6 for each 100,000 man-years compared with 106.3 in San Francisco Bay and San Diego areas and 79.9 for the rest of the state.

Despite these results, Breslow said, "I want to emphasize very strongly that smog does have serious adverse health effects."

Embezzlement Case

Bank Shakeup Felt in Canada

CEDAR VALE, Kan. (AP)—The business affairs of a bank president in this southwestern Kansas community of 859 have crumbled, creating repercussions from Canada to Mexico.

Ray D. Oltjen, president of the Cedar Vale National Bank, and his son, Thayne D. Oltjen, Wednesday were indicted by a federal grand jury in Topeka, Kan., on charges of embezzling more than $1,000,000, nearly one-third of the bank's deposits. Earlier this year, the internal revenue service charged Oltjen with $1,403,382 in unpaid taxes since 1964.

ROUTINE PROBE

A routine examination of bank records by national examiners in June unearthed shortages. After a thorough examination, the bank was closed in July with $3,824,263 in deposits and $2,848,739 out in loans.

The grand jury indictment charged Oltjen and his son, who was vice-president of the bank, with 22 separate instances of embezzlement, with amounts ranging from $35,830 to $49,982. The total was $1,010,730.

"Our investigation leads us to believe Oltjen took the money to put into three other companies he owned," said U.S. District Attorney Newell George of Kansas. He refused to identify two of the businesses, but did say they were located mainly in Kansas.

THIRD FIRM

A third firm in the Oltjen empire became known the same day the bank failed. Oltjen's managing partner in L and O Cattle Co., William Lohman, was found shot to death near Fort Yates, N.D. A coroner's jury ruled the death was accidental due to a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Oltjen and Lohman had been partners in L and O Cattle Co. for 10 years. The firm is believed to own 20,000 beef cattle on ranches in South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana, Canada and possibly Mexico.

The L and O firm had received several hundred thousand dollars from the bank on cattle loans, federal investigators said.

Indian Nets Upheld

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP)—The Washington State Supreme Court upheld Thursday the right of the Yakima Indians to fish with nets for salmon in the Columbia River.

In a unanimous five-judge departmental opinion, written by visiting judge Lloyd Shoreit, the court upheld a decision of Skamania County Superior Court Judge Ross R. Rakow.

Rakow had dismissed a case brought by the state against Ernest James, Lester Joseph Charley, James G. Tanewasha, Clifford Barney Tulee and Delno Hoptowitz.

The five Indians are members of the Yakima tribe and were arrested on April 18 and 19, 1966, for fishing with set nets on the Columbia between the Bridge of the Gods and Bonneville Dam. The Indians claimed the right to fish at the location under an 1855 treaty, saying it was a "usual and accustomed place" for members of the tribe.

Bennett:

Raise Still Open

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bennett Thursday said speculation about no salary increases for civil servants has not precluded the government's prerogative of announcing pay hikes in the Jan. 25 speech from the throne.

The premier was commenting on reports of his address Tuesday to a group of Vancouver Island civil servants at a dinner honoring those with 25 years of service.

PAST YEARS

Mr. Bennett said he told them that in past years he had used the dinner as an opportunity to announce pay increases for civil servants.

He then told the gathering, "I am not making any similar announcement at this time."

He said the latter comment was interpreted as meaning there definitely will be no increases.

"This is not necessarily correct," he said Thursday.

CIVIL SERVANTS

But when asked if the province's 23,000 civil servants could expect pay increases in 1968, he would not say.

"All main government policies will be announced in the throne speech. You can interpret that any way you want."

The premier said the 1968 session will be "the greatest in the history of B.C." and its theme will be "the dynamic society with restraint."

He said B.C. plans to practice restraint so as not to aid inflation.

'Gentleman'

Bandit Pays Return Trip

JOLIETTE, Que. (CP) — The "gentleman bandit" has pulled his annual Christmas holdup in this area for the third year, getting away with $3,000 from a credit union here, police said Thursday.

A year ago he held up the same credit union and got about the same amount.

Wearing a toque and sunglasses, he entered shortly after noon Wednesday, pulled a sawed-off rifle from a shopping bag and politely asked customers and employees to lie on the floor.

'PLEASE LIE DOWN'

"Please lie down or I will have to deal harshly with anyone who disobeys," Police Chief Valmore Lapierre quoted him as saying.

The man put the money in his shopping bag, then said: "I'm sorry for having to do this, but I need cash badly. Thanks."

Two years ago a man with a similar technique held up a bank in nearby St. Paul l'Ermite. Both towns are about 40 miles north of Montreal.

Rhodesia: Force Possible

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada, Britain and other countries will have to give serious consideration to military intervention in Rhodesia if all other means to bring down that country's white-supremacy government fail, a Canadian professor said Thursday.

"Good lord," commented Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) to the statement of Prof. C. R. Pratt of Toronto before the external affairs committee.

Prof. Pratt, 41, head of the international studies program at the University of Toronto, said he does not favor the use of force in Rhodesia.

DELAY DANGER

"But we ought not to give away this card," he added.

The consequences of doing nothing might in the long run be more embittering and disastrous than military intervention.

But force should be contemplated only after every other means—mainly economic sanctions—to bring down the present regime had been exhausted, and then only in a Commonwealth or United Nations context.

Prof. Pratt said no other country is better placed than Canada to take a political initiative in the Rhodesian situation.

"Such as de Gaulle in Canada," interjected Jack McIntosh (PC—Swift Current-Maple Creek).

Prices Fight Revived

OTTAWA (CP) — The government gave notice Thursday of another stage in a battle to lower drug prices.

The Commons was informed that amendments to patents and trade marks are to be unveiled today. Informants said they include recommended action to lessen the protection enjoyed by the drug industry.

On the eve of the step, the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association of Canada, voice of the major drug manufacturers, distributed to MPs a survey purporting to prove no significant benefit to the consumer in prices of prescriptions written under brand names or chemical names.

BRAND NAME
PMAC membership includes the major brand-name manufacturers and the organization has opposed proposals by the Commons drug prices inquiry that would lessen their patent and trade marks protection.

The PMAC survey came under immediate fire from Dr. William Howe, New Democrat MP for Hamilton South and an exponent of drug prescribing by generic or chemical name as a means of lowering consumer drug costs.

Dr. Howe attacked the method employed in the survey and accused the PMAC of "aggravating figures to put brand names" in a favorable light.

TAX REMOVED
The government has already put into effect one recommendation of the drug prices inquiry, headed by Dr. Harry Harley, Liberal MP for Halton. In the budget June 1, Finance Minister Sharp lifted the 12-per-cent federal sales tax from prescription drugs.

The patents and trade marks amendments are expected to implement at least in part the committee's recommendations that it be made easier to import drugs on which patents are held in Canada.

At present, the holder of a patent on a drug made in Canada may be required by federal authorities to issue a "compulsory licence" to a rival to make the same drug, if this would mean lower costs to the public.

ROYALTY
The patent holder receives a royalty payment from the firm to which a compulsory licence is granted.

The drug prices inquiry proposed that this compulsory licensing system be extended to cover imports of patented drugs. This would require an amendment to the Patent Act.

A companion change would be required in the Trade Marks Act to make it plain that no legal action for patent infringement could be launched against an importer who brings in a patented drug that is manufactured by a foreign company "related" to the Canadian patent-holding firm.

Squibb Raps Profit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Retired drug company executive G. R. Squibb warned the pharmaceutical industry Thursday to stop reaping windfalls from the sick or face stiff government regulation.

George Squibb, former vice-president of his family's firm, E. R. Squibb and Sons, told Senate investigators that Americans were being charged excessive prices for drugs.

"SPEAKS FOR SELF"
The Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association quickly issued a statement which said Squibb "is no longer an officer of E. R. Squibb and Sons. He does not speak for the Squibb company nor for the pharmaceutical industry. He speaks for himself."

Squibb, whose grandfather founded the firm, told the Senate small business monopoly subcommittee drug manufacturers set prices at whatever the market would bear and the public was getting tired of it.

BELOW AVERAGE
"Prices set nine or 12 or 20 times factory cost only serve as incentives for public attack," he said. "Exploitation of medicines used in life preserving and life saving situations by setting prices far above cost must be avoided no matter what the temptation." He said drug manufacturers were entitled to reasonable profits but not "windfalls."

Squibb said he would even go so far as to recommend that drug profits be "less than those of average comparable industries" in recognition of drug manufacturers' social responsibilities.

'Give to Poor'Cathedral Money Protested

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A commission for a new $8,500,000 Roman Catholic cathedral was blessed Wednesday while several Catholic pickets protested the money should have gone for low cost housing for the poor.

Archbishop Joseph McGuiken defended construction of the new St. Mary's cathedral. He said most of those opposing construction were young.

"They think we are out of touch with the people but we are really in touch," said the archbishop. "These young people are not involved and just don't realize how much we are doing."

"Part of this is just the spirit of the times. They are just having fun protesting."

Archbishop Luigi Raimondi, apostolic delegate to the United States, blessed the cornerstone in a ceremony near Cathedral high school. The stone was first used for the old St. Mary's cathedral which burned down in 1962.

A dozen pickets paraded nearby. They carried two placards. One said "We protest a cathedral of affluence and unconcern" and the other merely showed pictures of the ultra modern design of the proposed cathedral and of a slum area.

A group within the archdiocese has urged that funds collected for replacement of the old cathedral be used for low cost housing.

Archbishop McGuiken said the archdiocese spends about $3,500,000 a year on various projects for the poor.

Vessel Drifts On Own

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — The Coast Guard cutter Storis reached the crippled American freighter Steel Flyer in the North Pacific Thursday, but the freighter's captain refused a towline and said he would wait for arrival of the commercial tug Sampson Sunday.

The Coast Guard said the extreme difference in deck heights would make it difficult for the Storis, from Kodiak, to tow the 492-foot ship, which lost her rudder and rudder post.

The Sampson, from Seattle, and the Navy tug Chowanoc, from Adak, both are due to reach the Steel Flyer Sunday. The Storis will stand by until then.

The Coast Guard said there was no immediate danger to the 45 men aboard the Steel Flyer, although the ship was rolling in seas tossed up by 45 knot winds.

Captain Held By Crew

ROTTERDAM (AP) — The crew of the Liberian freighter African Monarch locked the captain in the wheelhouse today, saying he threatened them, the Dutch minesweeper Rhenen reported.

The African Monarch, of 7,288 tons, was six miles off the Dutch Hook of Holland when the trouble broke out. The captain asked for assistance.

After consultations with the Liberian embassy at The Hague, the government sent the Rhenen with its crew, a marine officer, 10 marines and the Liberian consul.

'THREAT MADE'

The Rhenen radioed: "Our men are aboard the African Monarch. They talked with some crew members of the vessel who said they were being threatened by their captain. "The crew members said 'We locked him plus two other men in the wheelhouse. The captain is armed.'"

The ship was en route from Rosstock, East Germany, to Rotterdam. Its crew of about 30 were reported to be mostly Italian.

TEAM CREATES ACTIVE VIRUS

By WILLIAM C. HARRISON
STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Biochemists said Thursday they had synthesized an active virus — in a major step that could lead to creation of life itself.

Dr. Arthur Kornberg, head of Stanford University's department of biochemistry, and Dr. Mehman Goulian, former Stanford post-doctoral fellow now at the University of Chicago, said they had produced in a test tube for the first time a fully active DNA virus.

Dr. Kornberg called the man-made virus biologically active — meaning that it can produce certain specific reactions — but he would not say that it is living matter.

The Stanford University biochemists, noting that there is no one accepted definition of the word "life," said nonetheless that they had succeeded in creating a virus which was capable of reproducing itself. "There is a wide difference among the attitudes of scientists as to whether viruses are living," said Dr. Kornberg.

In Washington, Dr. James A. Shannon, director of the National Institutes of Health, the key financial supporter of Dr. Kornberg's work, said the achievement "unquestionably will stand as one of the great landmarks of research in the life sciences."

He said the new development has great potential to help solve a number of difficult and pressing national health problems, particularly certain forms of cancer that may be caused by viruses, and possibly diseases of genetic origin.

A virus is a protein bag containing a coiled thread or threads of nucleic acids, the essence of life. Viruses cause numerous diseases in men, plants and animals, but many others do not.

DNA—deoxyribonucleic acid—is the basic hereditary material found in every living cell. When, in feeding, a cell absorbs a virus containing DNA, the viral nucleic acids can take control of the cell's own DNA, which then starts producing more viruses instead of taking care of its cell functions. Sometimes it makes so many viruses that it bursts.

The Stanford team used as a template or pattern the single-strand DNA of a dwarf virus, PHI X 174, that infects and destroys a type of bacteria called E. coli in the human intestinal tract. Neither the virus nor the microbe is known to cause disease.

Soviet Ship Circles Oil Rig

Navy Eyes Surveyor

By MARK DICKINSON

The mystery mission of HMCS Qu'Appelle and HMCS Saskatchewan has been to keep track of a Russian navy survey vessel off the west coast of Vancouver Island, Rear Admiral J. A. Charles said at a press conference Thursday.

It was the first official word of the nature of the ships' secret movements since Saturday. The RCN began watching the unnamed Soviet ship Saritshev, after it was noted making "unusual" manoeuvres close to the Canadian coast, said the commander of Pacific Maritime Forces.

The mission of Qu'Appelle and Saskatchewan was kept secret so that the Russians would not know intention of the surveillance patrol.

"We didn't know what the Russians were doing out there, so we did not think they should know exactly what we were intending to do about them," said the admiral.

He said the two destroyer escorts were ordered to stand by the 2,674-ton Saritshev in case "we could give it any assistance or guidance if it were to enter (Canadian) territorial waters."

The navy first spotted the Russian survey vessel after it steamed east across the north-

Pacific to the entrance of Juan de Fuca Strait.

The Saritshev, which remained about 50 miles off Vancouver Island coast during its trip north, stopped near the Queen Charlotte Island. When it turned into Hecate Strait — thought to be "most unusual" — the Qu'Appelle was sent out.

On Monday the Russians took on supplies from a Soviet tanker and the next day the Saritshev arrived off Wickanish Bay where it circled a Shell Oil rig, SEDCO 135-F, three times.

VESSEL SLOWED

Then it was back to Juan de Fuca Strait on Wednesday when she slowed and manoeuvred.

Rear-Admiral Charles said the Soviet actions were "impolite intrusions."

MAPPING TASK

Rear Admiral Charles speculated that the Saritshev was mapping the sea bottom and conducting hydrograph surveys.

The ship may also be off the North American coast to conduct tests when the announced Russian atomic explosions occur near the Aleutian Islands, he said.

After the Saskatchewan replaced Qu'Appelle, the Russians steamed south, off the U.S. coast.

The Qu'Appelle arrived in port at 8 a.m. Thursday and the Saskatchewan was expected home early this morning.

Mills Halt Work To Help Hydro

B.C. Hydro power system for the province reached an all-time peak load demand of 2,150,000 kilowatts Wednesday night. Several Vancouver Island pulp mills were asked to shut down operation.

No heavier loads are expected, Hydro co-chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum said Thursday night from Vancouver.

"I think we've had the highest load now," he said. No homes were affected.

B.C. Hydro for several weeks has been gearing for the possibility of a power "brownout" during an expected peak load period on the island during mid-December.

Dr. Shrum described a brownout as "something like sprinkling regulations."

Patients Face Eviction

By A. H. MURPHY

Two large Victoria private hospitals told city council Thursday that if it can't pay more for the accommodation of welfare patients it had better "make other arrangements" in from one to three weeks.

However, aldermen were also informed that there just aren't any other beds for the 66 patients facing eviction, or the 175 more who should be in hospital.

There is just no place for them to go, said Ald. Lily Wilson. All beds are full and the provincial government is not licensing any more hospitals.

A delegation from council will seek an immediate interview with Welfare Minister Campbell to resolve a situation which was described by Ald. Wilson as "completely impossible."

"Where are our people going to go?" she asked.

The hospitals, Glengarry and Glenwarren informed the city that they could no longer accommodate welfare patients, many of whom are bedridden, at the rate of $230 a month which is allowed the city by the provincial government.

In a letter dated Dec. 6, Glengarry Hospital's solicitors

Ross

Happy Birthday Barry, Have a Hungry Shark!

By HELEN MITCHELL

CAMPBELL RIVER—A former resident, Barry Ross, 26, is floating lazily in 90-degree weather in a South Seas tropical paradise while his family and friends in Campbell River are donning warm clothing and long underwear.

Barry, the son of Mrs. Valerie Ross is on a two-year, round-the-world cruise on the yacht, Driver.

He signed on as cook on the vessel, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Philip Graham. Mr. Graham is the son of the late F. Ronald Graham of Vancouver.

Barry was born and raised in Campbell River and received most of his education here. He has spent several seasons as a crew member of a seiner while furthering his education, and taught school in Vancouver for a year before leaving on the cruise.

The Driver left the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club last June, heading for Hawaii and the yacht races at Honolulu. From there the vessel has proceeded at a leisurely pace through the South Seas.

It stopped for two weeks at Fanning Island Atoll in the Line Islands. In a letter dated Oct. 30, Barry writes in part:

"Here we are four degrees north of the Equator in mid-Pacific... have been here for the past 10 days enjoying the peaceful anchorage inside the atoll... thought you might like a letter postmarked from here. The (mail) boat only comes in once every six months.

"The island is 10 miles by five miles. It is inhabited by one white man, Phil Palmer, and by Gilbertese people who harvest the coconut for copra...

First Shark

"I encountered my first shark yesterday (on my birthday of all days!). It was only a small one (four to five feet or small), but I still headed for shore in case his father was around.

"The water is like an aquarium, with fish in countless shapes, sizes, and hues. Some are very large.

"My feet are becoming very tough, flat and wide, as shoes are unheard of in these tropical places.

Cross-Legged

"Three of us were very fortunate in being invited to a Gilbertese village and spent the night singing and dancing and doing tricks. We also were given a house with pandanus and pillows and mosquito netting... In the morning we had tea and bread... I went to church wearing a lava (a cloth you wrap around your waist).

"My darned leg fell asleep while sitting cross-legged as these people do since childhood."

Barry closes this letter by hoping that all are well in "good old Campbell River" and says: "I sure miss the change in seasons. We are in a continual summer of 85-95 degrees approximately, at all times."

He says he is now beardless—but healthy.

Used Sail Only

From there the Driver stopped at the Marquesas Islands and at Tuamotu Archipelago before going on to the Society Islands.

On Nov. 15, Barry writes from Papeete, Tahiti:

"We took eight days to travel the 1,400 miles to Papeete... had a beautiful sail. We did not turn on the motor until we were outside the Papeete breakwater waiting for the pilot boat.

"I was the first to shout 'Land Ho!' from 30 feet up in the rigging when I spotted Tahiti and Moorea from 50 miles out in the ocean—it was a very welcome sight.

Women Beautiful

"The place is very fascinating, and the people are fabulous. A Tahitian girl washed my clothes for me this afternoon. She also cooked me a Tahitian meal of raw fish, breadfruit, fried fish and French bread... The women are very beautiful, all have long, black hair, and fine Tahitian, Chinese and French features.

"We transported the Fanning Island mail to Tahiti via the good ship Driver on Her Majesty's Royal Mail Service."

Barry ends the letter by remarking that he is thoroughly enjoying all the comforts of Polynesian hospitality.

Jail for Weekends?

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO — RCMP Staff Sergeant Gib Perry told a public safety meeting Thursday night that a program for jailing traffic offenders just for weekends may be incorporated on Vancouver Island.

"This program is in the thinking stages. If you can make the driver suffer and still allow him to maintain his family and keep his job, we're reaching our goal," Sergeant Perry told 50 people in the Credit Union building.

His comments followed Nanaimo Crown prosecutor Alan Horne's outline of a South African program of weekend jail for offenders, covering 15 to 30 consecutive weekends.

"It works," he said.

Nanaimo NDP MLA Dave

Stupich said, "Dave Barrett, NDP MLA for Coquitlam, has proposed this for the past few years."

"Mr. Barrett has also included provision for jail in the evenings, and making the convicted person pay for the cost of being kept in jail."

Panelists attending the meeting agreed with guest speaker Alan Rossiter, traffic superintendent of Vancouver city police, who said "We've got to make drinking-driving a plague among us."

He said the effects of drinking-driving are as bad as those of marijuana and LSD.

He said "The leaders in our society must be trained before we can expect the general public to be trained."

Superintendent Rossiter suggested new drivers start training at 16. "Mass media programs for attracting the attention of the general public must be changed because they are ineffective."

"Public education is the key," he said.

Superintendent Rossiter also explained that police image has changed drastically over the past years.

He said when he was a child, children who were lost or in trouble would seek policemen for help.

Recently, he said he had witnessed mothers warning naughty children that policemen would "lock them up."

He said this is exactly the wrong attitude.

Tallow Tale

These two trainee chefs are among Nanaimo Vocational School's culinary class invited to prepare a tallow dinner at Government House on Jan. 25. Lieutenant Governor George Pearkes extended the invitation Thursday night when he visited the school for dinner. Dan Murphy and Susan Lebold here prepare tallow sauce, working in tallow. Another display was Santa Claus and his reindeer.

Indians Welcome Help For New Farm Co-Op

DUNCAN — Co-operative prospects are being explored on the Cowichan Indian Reserve, and veteran Co-op man John A. Trew from Beechy, Sask., arrived here a few days ago to help the Indians.

Mr. Trew has been running a Co-op farm in Saskatchewan with six other men.

Now on leave from this job, he has just returned from Guyana, South America, where he had been sent two years ago by the Co-op Union of Canada to help people form similar organizations.

Several Months

As he did in Guyana, Mr. Trew will act as advisor if the Cowichan Indians decide the co-op idea in its various forms can be helpful to them.

He will be here for a few months.

Mr. Trew said although Co-op plays an important role in agriculture in Canada, and in many other countries, the basic idea can be used in a large variety of endeavours, and its application on the reserve will depend on the band members.

Corn and Hay

Now Mr. Trew has started discussions with band manager Ross Modeste and Rennie Louie, farm foreman of the band.

Mr. Modeste said "I am glad to see John here."

"We shall come to some conclusion as to what will be done."

"We are considering growing hay and possibly corn."

Needed Expert

He said the engagement of Mr. Trew was made possible through the active farm development committee of the band, and three Cowichan Agency officials, Ron Sampson, Noel Bayless and Vern Krutz.

Mr. Louie said "I hope we can find a way to develop our land on the reserve."

"We had made plans previously but we agreed we needed an expert."

Through winter works it is hoped to employ men to continue with the construction of a barn.

Mr. Louie pointed out now there is only one full-time farmer on the reserve but a systematic building of farm land could create much interest among some of the band's families.

Fighting Chamber Demands Highway

COURTENAY — The Courtenay-Cornox chamber of commerce is determined to stand fast on its plea for a road linking Cumberland and Port Alberni.

MLA for the Alberni Valley, Dr. H. R. McDiarmid, has called on supporters of the Horne Lake route and the Cumberland route to meet and come to a mutual understanding.

The Courtenay-Cornox chamber of commerce decided at a meeting of directors Wednesday night to immediately notify the Alberni Valley chamber, Minister of Highways P. A. Gagliardi and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell of its support for the Cumberland route.

Directors said they were willing to meet with Alberni delegates on the question. The Alberni chamber will be notified of this.

Hans Frank was named secretary of the chamber.

FERRY DELAY

The chamber has sent a telegram to Premier Bennett, protesting the delay between the time the ferry Queen of Prince Rupert is repaired and the time it returns to its route, almost three months.

The telegram reads: Courtenay-Cornox chamber of commerce shocked and disappointed at the news that ferry Queen of Prince Rupert not to sail until end of March. Consider publicity and groundwork of past three years being wasted and danger of other interests generating alternative route to bypass Vancouver Island. Urge reconsideration and immediate reinstatement of Kelsey Bay-Prince Rupert ferry service.

Port Man Awaits Perjury Hearing

A Port Alberni man was remanded to Monday in central magistrate's court for committal for trial on a charge of perjury, when a two-day preliminary hearing ended Thursday.

Magistrate William Oatler agreed to the remand at the request of counsel Jack Gatehouse, who is defending Frank Hulbert, 40, on the charge arising from testimony Hulbert gave in the preliminary hearing of William Mitchell on a charge of murder.

At the 1943 preliminary hearing, Hulbert testified that Mitchell had told him he had struck Molly Justice, 15, with a rock and stabbed her with a knife at Saanich.

In the first day of the hearing, Wednesday, Mr. Justice J. M. Coady, a retired member of the B.C. Appeal Court and the trial judge in 1943, read notes from his bench book, since there was no transcript of the trial available.

NANAIMO—If dad smokes, his young son is likely to take up the habit. If parents are not smokers, children will probably stay away from tobacco.

Those were some findings in a survey on smoking, answered by 145 Woodlands Junior High School boys, all in Grade 9.

The 48 who smoked, said the example set in the home is one reason why they began smoking. Father was the main influence, followed by whether mother smoked.

Big brother and sister seemed to have little bearing, trailing by half the figures on the parents.

The non-smokers showed the same results of home influence. Most boys admitted athletes should not smoke, but said also that girls should be non-smokers.

Reasons for smoking were, the calming effect (15), something to do (13), with an even split of six each with friends smoking.

Only nine said habit, satisfaction and unknown reasons promoted the use of tobacco.

The non-smokers said health (38), and cost (22), were the reasons, and a total of 22 felt parents' objections, the bad smell, and unknown reasons kept them away from cigarettes.

The peak age at which the youths begin to smoke, is from 13 to 14 years, with experimentation previously dropping sharply, and indication that those who do not smoke past that age may never do so.

Smoking habits range from one cigarette a week to a full pack a day, 20 are once-a-week smokers, 15 smoke three to 10 a day, and five consuming a half or full pack each day.

Out of the 48 smokers, 32 indicate they want to stop.

Among the total, 131 say there is a connection between smoking and lung cancer, heart disease, stomach ulcers, and breathing problems.

The smokers feel they have been affected by advertising.

Road Expropriated

NORTH COWICHAN — At a special meeting, North Cowichan council gave a final reading to the Lakes Road expropriation bylaw. It is hoped a footpath can be built before Roome Road Elementary School opens early next month.

DUNCAN — An average of one unit of blood must be collected every 15 seconds of every working day to maintain blood and blood products for patients in Canadian hospitals. The Cowichan branch of the Red Cross has made a last-minute appeal for donors to its clinic which ends today at the Duncan United Church Hall, 1:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

CHEMUNUS — William Binder, an eager spotter at the sawmill, saved his eyes recently by wearing an eye shield. His picaron glanced off a slab, hit a metal roll and bounced back and cracked his face shield. "He would be blind now if he hadn't worn the protective cover," said production manager R. F. Zoost, awarding him membership in the Wise Owl Club of Canada.

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — A Crofton man escaped death Wednesday night, suffering only a scratched elbow and bruises, when his car hit a traffic island six miles south of Duncan, rolled over, and knocked out two stop signs. Hamilton Oliver, 66, "is a very lucky man," said Shawnigan Lake RCMP.

UCLEULEY — The second annual membership meeting of the Alberni Valley and District Credit Union has been held in the Ucleuley Athletic Club hall, with George Gudimanson as chairman. Harold Turner and Bert Berner outlined changes taking place in the co-op movement, especially in regard to more money being made available for development of housing.

CHEMAINUS — About 15 high school students have formed a mini-company, Chemac, under the Junior Achievement system producing Christmas cards. The

Ferry Fight Seen Ahead

KELSEY BAY — British Columbia and Alaska ferry services may be competing against each other next year.

The possibility was created by moves to have the Alaska Seattle ferry stop at Prince Rupert, terminus of B.C.'s Queen of Prince Rupert.

The Alaskan service from Ketchikan to Seattle started today, with a return run planned for Saturday.

The new service was instituted after Premier Bennett announced the Queen of Prince Rupert, damaged in a collision last August, would be off the Kelsey Bay-Prince Rupert run until the spring.

Civic leaders of Prince Rupert and Campbell River said Premier Bennett had assured them the Queen would be back in service on a permanent basis in the spring.

But in Prince Rupert residents approached Alaska legislators to have the new Alaska service stop at Prince Rupert.

Alex Bill, president of the Chamber of Commerce and one of the leaders of the movement, said he is recommending his organization press for it.

And in Juneau, Alaska, Bill Boardman, Republican state legislator, said he is seeing Gov. W. J. Hickel to request the extra stop.

But Boardman, who is speaker of the Alaska state legislature, said he foresaw two objections — delay because of customs requirements, and certain restrictions imposed by the U.S. Coast Guard.

Active Firemen Keep Hopping

PORT ALBERNI — Seventeen calls were answered by the Port Alberni Fire Department last month, and total damage was estimated at $225.

Three calls involved careless smoking habits.

Children smoking in one case caused damage of only $25, but brought out 10 off-duty men and 11 volunteers in response to the siren. Two other calls from smokers caused $200 damage to a chesterfield, and $100 damage to a mattress.

Most damage came to the Mv Restless when cabin panelling was ignited by a hot exhaust pipe, doing $350 damage to the vessel.

Three false alarms were answered, but these were placed with good intent.

The firemen also took out the inhalator for a car-accident victim who recovered before their arrival, and administered first aid to an accident victim in the shopping plaza, across from the fire hall.

In addition, they inspected 40 oil furnaces and tank installations, two compressed gas systems, seven commercial buildings, two gas tanks and pumps.

They investigated five complaints, inspected two halls, one motel and held six school fire drills.

Fire crews from MacMillan Bloedel divisions saw the equipment and had its uses explained.

Forty-nine cubs, scouts and brownies and guides, 26 jayettes and their children, 50 youngsters from Spruce Lake Elementary School, a church group of eight and 45 individuals, all had tours of the well-equipped new building over the month.

For Successor

If Pearson Had His Way...

Trudeau Would Be Out in Front

Reformer Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP)—"I will indicate in no way any preference for a successor and I will have no part in this aspect of party activities."

Thus Prime Minister Pearson stated emphatically the path he will follow after announcing Thursday he will retire next spring as prime minister and Liberal leader once the party picks a successor.

Close associates of Pearson said that although the prime minister, like Mackenzie King, will make no public pronouncements, he favors as a successor a "reform" Liberal, preferably French-speaking.

These sources added that three Liberals Pearson does not consider in the "reform" category are External Affairs Minister Martin, Finance Minister Sharp and Transport Minister Hellyer.

They said that at least one Liberal considered as a reformer by Pearson is Justice Minister Trudeau, 46-year-old bachelor.

LEADERS ALTERNATE

In this century, the Liberals have alternated between French and English-speaking leaders.

Pearson has said privately he is Canada's last unilingual prime minister.

It may be significant that the only cabinet ministers he saw privately Thursday night at home were Trudeau and Manpower Minister Marchand. The subject was not known.

Virus Created in Test Tube

By WILLIAM C. HARRISON

STANFORD, Calif. (AP).—Biochemists said Thursday they had synthesized an active virus in a major step that could lead to creation of life itself.

Dr. Arthur Kornberg, head of Stanford University's department of biochemistry, and Dr. Mehran Goulian, former Stanford post-doctoral fellow now at the University of Chicago, said they had produced in a test tube for the first time a fully active DNA virus.

Dr. Kornberg called the man-made virus biologically active—meaning that it can produce certain specific reactions—but he would not say that it is living matter.

The Stanford University biochemists, noting that there is no one accepted definition of the word "life," said nonetheless that they had succeeded in creating a virus which was capable of reproducing itself.

"There is a wide difference among the attitudes of scientists as to whether viruses are living," said Dr. Kornberg.

In Washington, Dr. James A. Shannon, director of the National Institutes of Health, the key financial supporter of Dr. Kornberg's work, said the achievement "unquestionably will stand as one of the great landmarks of research in the life sciences."

He said the new development has great potential to help solve a number of difficult and pressing national health problems, particularly certain forms of cancer that may be caused by viruses, and possibly diseases of genetic origin.

A virus is a protein bag containing a coiled thread or threads of nucleic acids, the essence of life. Viruses cause numerous diseases in men, plants and animals, but many others do not.

DNA—deoxyribonucleic acid—is the basic hereditary material found in every living cell. When, in feeding, a cell absorbs a virus containing DNA, the viral nucleic acids can take control of the cell's own DNA, which then starts producing more viruses instead of taking care of its cell functions. Sometimes it makes so many viruses that it bursts.

The Stanford team used as a template or pattern the single-strand DNA of a dwarf virus, PHI X 174, that infects and destroys a type of bacteria called E. coli in the human intestinal tract. Neither the virus nor the microbe is known to cause disease.

Dr. Robert L. Sinsheimer of Cal Tech discovered PHI X 174

PATIENTS FACE EVICTION

Welfare Fee Ultimatum

By A. H. MURPHY

Two large Victoria private hospitals told city council Thursday that if it can't pay more for the accommodation of welfare patients it had better "make other arrangements" in from one to three weeks.

However, aldermen were also informed that there just aren't any other beds for the 66 patients facing eviction, or the 175 more who should be in hospital.

There is just no place for them to go, said Ald. Lily Wilson. All beds are full and the provincial government isn't licensing any more hospitals.

A delegation from council will seek an immediate interview with Welfare Minister Campbell to resolve a situation which was described by Ald. Wilson as "completely impossible."

"Where are our people going to go?" she asked. The hospitals, Glenarry and Glenarthen, informed the city that they could no longer accommodate welfare patients, many of whom are bedridden, at the rate of $230 a month which is allowed the city by the provincial government.

In a letter dated Dec. 6, Glenarry Hospital's solicitors

Soviet Ship Circles Oil Rig

Navy Eyes Surveyor

By MARK DICKINSON

The mystery mission of HMCS Qu'Appelle and HMCS Saskatchewan has been to keep track of a Russian navy survey vessel off the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Rear Admiral J. A. Charles said at a press conference Thursday.

It was the first official word of the nature of the ships' secret movements since Saturday.

The RCN began watching the unarmed Soviet ship Saritshev, after it was noted making "unusual" manoeuvres close to the Canadian coast, said the commander of Pacific Maritime Forces.

The mission of Qu'Appelle and Saskatchewan was kept secret so that the Russians would not know the intention of the surveillance patrol.

"We didn't know what the Russians were doing out there, so we did not think they should know exactly what we were intending to do about them," said the admiral.

He said the two destroyer escorts were ordered to stand by the 2,674-ton Saritshev in case "we could give it any assistance or guidance if it were to enter (Canadian) territorial waters."

The navy first spotted the Russian survey vessel after it steamed east across the north

Pacific to the entrance of Juan de Fuca Strait.

The Saritshev, which remained about 50 miles off Vancouver Island coast during its trip north, stopped near the Queen Charlotte Island. When it turned into Hecate Strait—thought to be "most unusual"—the Qu'Appelle was sent out.

On Monday the Russians took on supplies from a Soviet tanker and the next day the Saritshev arrived off Wickaninish Bay where it circled a Shell Oil rig, SEDCO 135-F, three times.

VESSEL SLOWED

Then it was back to Juan de Fuca Strait on Wednesday when she slowed and manoeuvred. Rear-Admiral Charles said the Soviet actions were "impolite intrusions."

"It is normal, under international understandings concerning warships, to let one another know what's happening," he said. "In this case, nobody knew."

MAPPING TASK

Rear Admiral Charles speculated that the Saritshev was mapping the sea bottom and conducting hydrographic surveys.

The ship may also be off the North American coast to conduct tests when the announced Russian atomic explosions occur near the Aleutian Islands, he said.

After the Saskatchewan replaced Qu'Appelle, the Russians steamed south, off the U.S. coast.

The Qu'Appelle arrived in port at 8 a.m. Thursday and the Saskatchewan was expected home early this morning.

Death Bill Passed By Senate

OTTAWA (CP).—The Senate Thursday passed the government's bill restricting the death penalty to killers of police officers and prison guards.

The bill, previously passed by the Commons, now needs only royal assent to become law.

Mills Halt Work To Help Hydro

B.C. Hydro power system for the province reached an all-time peak load demand of 2,150,000 kilowatts Wednesday night.

Several Vancouver Island pulp mills were asked to shut down operation.

No heavier loads are expected, Hydro co-chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum said Thursday night from Vancouver.

"I think we've had the highest load now," he said. No homes were affected.

B.C. Hydro for several weeks has been gearing for the possibility of a power "brownout" during an expected peak load period on the Island during mid-December.

Dr. Shrum described a brownout as "something like sprinkling regulations."

Hydro received word from all lumber and pulp operations that they would shut off power at peak periods.

"Some mills doing pulp grinding closed down work Wednesday night," he said. Another Hydro spokesman said they were at Port Alberni and Crofton.

"If they hadn't, the voltage would have just gone down to the point where motors would have burned out, and then everyone would have been in real trouble."

He said heavy industries shut down operation on a rotation basis.

It would be two years before adequate standby capacity was available to the Island, he said in an earlier statement.

Attempts to boost the transmission of power by submarine cables have been delayed by failure of transformers to meet specifications.

Papa Bear Adds Tonic

Victorians can have a night out next Wednesday, watch a first-class nightclub show and give to the Colonist 500 Fund at the same time.

Nightclub owner Christopher Crawley said Thursday that Papa Bear's Medicine Show will be at the Nine in the Fifth Place, 1313 Government, from 8:30 p.m. until 1 a.m., with the proceeds going to the fund.

"I'll be donating the club's facilities and also giving free coffee," he said.

"Papa Bear's Medicine Show features artists from Seattle, London, and Holland, and it's first class entertainment."

"There's everything from New Orleans jazz to contemporary music, and the group is very strong vocally."

Admission will be $2, and patrons will see the same show being given at the club tonight and Saturday.

This Saturday and Sunday the Victoria Gun Club holds its annual ham and turkey shoot to swell the fund, which Thursday stood just below the $10,000 mark.

Aim is to get a total of $15,000 before the deadline for donations next Thursday, so that each of the 500 families which the Daily Colonist has undertaken to help this Christmas will get $30 each.
